MAYOR BARNES OF WELLSVILLE ACTS ON GRAND JURORS' HINT

Executive Will Call Appointees Tonight and Tuesday.

EXAM PROPOSED

Mayor Brown Defers Appointment of 14 Specials Here.

At a series of two conferences, one of which will be held tonight and the other tomorrow night, Wellsville's volunteer police force, consisting of 25 non-paid civilian officers pledged to give their assistance to the police department in any and all cases of emergency, will be disbanded, according to announcement today by Chief of Police John Fultz.

The action, which will be taken at the authority of Mayor James S. Barnes, follows the recommendation of the last grand jury that special police be chosen from the civil service list.

While the Wellsville volunteers can not be classed as special police, as the acceptance of such a position would require them to begin only when they are called upon by police authorities, the grand jury recommendation will be followed out by the city. Chief Fultz pointed out, in order to eliminate all question concerning the status of any such officer in the future.

Tuesday night, according to present plans, there will be no Wellsville volunteer police. Within the near future, however, it is likely that a civil service meeting will be called by the authorities and prospective volunteer police will be required to pass an examination before being selected as members of the organization which probably will supersede the present body.

In announcing their plans for the reorganization of the volunteers under the civil service plan, Mayor James Barnes and Chief of Police Fultz praised the services that have been rendered by members of the present organization, which came into existence a year and a half ago.

This course of action in Wellsville was announced as Mayor Brown, of East Liverpool was considering the names of fourteen eligibles on the civil service list for 15 places on special policemen here. Three executives said he was uncertain when he would make the appointments authorized by a councilmanic ordinance.

TWO RUN DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. M. I. Cain and Mrs. Wesley McAllister Injured.

Mrs. M. I. Cain and Mrs. Wesley McAllister, both of Ohio avenue, were recovering today from injuries suffered Friday night when run down by an automobile owned and driven by Oscar Colson, East End auto wrecker, along the River road.

Mrs. Cain, whose left leg was broken just below the knee, is confined in the City hospital, while Mrs. McAllister, who sustained three fractures, ribs and cuts and bruises, is under the care of a physician at her home.

The two women were en route to the Biederwolf tabernacle at 6:30 p. m. when the accident occurred. Colson, also enroute down town, failed to notice the pedestrians, he claims, because of the blinding headlights of another automobile, which approached him from the opposite direction.

He removed the two women to the Cain residence, where a physician was called. Later Mrs. Cain was taken to the hospital and Mrs. McAllister assisted to her home.

MAYOR BROWN REVERSED IN THOMPSON CASE

Appellate Court Rules Farmer is Innocent of Liquor Count.

WAS FINED $300 Accused Was Arrested After Laid by Special Police.

The appellate court has reversed the findings of Mayor Charles Brown and common pleas court in the case of the state against Beryl Thompson, Grimm's Bridge farmer, who was found guilty here several months ago of a charge of possessing utensils for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor, it was announced today.

Thompson was arrested after special officers raided an abandoned coal mine on the farm, which he leases, where they found a still and a quantity of supplies used in the manufacture of whiskey. Thompson, after standing trial, was found guilty and fined $300 by Mayor Brown.

Attorney S. W. Crawford, who represented the defendant, immediately carried the case to the common pleas court on error, Judge Moore upholding the decision of the lower court. Thompson's attorney then appealed the case to the appellate court which met in Lisbon last week.

The case was argued by Attorney Crawford, representing Thompson and Solicitor H. L. Brokaw. The court held that there was insufficient evidence to prove that Thompson owned the still or had knowledge of its presence on his farm and found him not guilty.

Dr. Biederwolf Speaks at Three Meetings in Tabernacle; While Co-workers Make Addresses in Two Uptown Churches.

BY T. T. JONES.

With five outstanding services, three being held at the Second and Washington street tabernacle and two in the uptown churches, the W. E. Biederwolf Union Evangelistic Campaign, now in progress in East Liverpool, attracted thousands on Sunday. In all 240 persons made decisions for a new life and consecration, thus swelling the grand total to 908 since the revival began.

At all of the tabernacle services, Dr. Biederwolf, the evangelist, spoke. Miss Wilma Davis, his assistant in charge of the women's work, made addresses in those held elsewhere.

Before a crowded auditorium, despite the inclement weather, Dr. Biederwolf, on Sunday night, thrilled his hearers with his dramatic portrayal of Christ's Crucifixion and resurrection as he concluded what even previously was an unusual discourse. With perspiration pouring from every pore and dripping perceptibly to the platform he depicted Calvary and the Cross with its attending physical suffering as few hereabouts ever witnessed or heard. "And all this was done for you and me—sin-cursed earth creatures," he concluded. "Thus you, in your unbelief, carelessness and depth of depravity can quit your lost state and repeating 'Jesus lover of my soul, let me to thy bosom, thy love to Him and find peace.'"

Availing that man, created in God's image and poisoned by Satan, had failed to be wowed back to Him by the ancient patriarchs and prophets, He had decided to give him the only remaining chance for redemption by sending in "bouquet form" to Bethlehem's manger the Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley which later the evangelist declared, was crushed on Golgotha's hill by reason of Judah's perfidy and became the sacrifice that approximated the only atonement for human irregularity of the divine standards.

"Knowing all this how can any one refrain from giving themselves unequivocally to Him?" he shouted. "It were better never to have been born than to have lived in East Liverpool in days like these and not accept Him. This sermon will be used to confound some of you in the judgment."

Week-end services of this invitation men and women and young folks, 47 in all came forward, indulged in prayer and signed cards for church preference.

Hoover's review of conditions referred chiefly to the fiscal year ending July 1, 1924, but he took occasion to remark that "some moderate decreases in activity during the latter part of the year have been followed by general recoveries."

Among the outstanding features of 1924, according to Hoover, was the advance in agricultural prices, which had "hitherto lagged behind industry since the slump of 1920."

Two Arteries Severed as Highway Man Wields Razor.

Midland police are searching today for two Negro bandits who made an attack upon Joseph A. Logan of East Liverpool, an employee of the Crucible Steel company, at the corner of Fourth street and Midland avenue, Midland.

One of the thugs cut a four-inch gash across the right side of Logan's throat, severing two arteries, while the other attempted to rob him. They were frightened away, however, before they accomplished their purpose, making their escape in the excitement which followed.

Logan, after eating his supper at a Midland restaurant, was returning to his automobile to go home when the two men approached him. He spoke to them and they returned his greeting. Just as they were about to pass him, one of them grasped Logan around the neck, bending his head back with the words, "Now I've got you." With the other hand he drew a razor or a sharp knife across Logan's throat.

Overlook Pay Envelope

The other man put his hand in one of Logan's trousers pockets for his money, but found it empty. Logan's other pocket contained his two weeks' pay which he had received just before leaving the mill.

With the blood streaming from his wound, Logan rushed across the street to a drug store. He was taken to the office of Dr. C. B. McGonney, where this gash was closed with several stitches. The victim was then assisted to his home, 445 First avenue.

Logan believes the sole motive of his two assailants was robbery. Midland police have been furnished with a good description of the men. Logan declares he would be able to identify one of the two thugs.

Undergoes Operation
in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Charles G. Dawes, vice-president-elect, today was reported to be recovering at the Evanston hospital where he underwent an operation for hernia yesterday. Attending physicians today pronounced Dawes' general condition excellent for rapid recovery, but declared that the nature of the operation would require that he remain in bed for approximately two weeks.

Dawes was operated upon yesterday afternoon. A local anesthetic being employed, and while being removed from the operating room he joked with attendants. A few hours later, he dropped into a deep, normal sleep and surgeons declared the operation entirely successful.

The immediate operation was recommended by Dawes' personal physician who was summoned yesterday after the vice president elect had noticed a slight pain and swelling in his abdomen after completing his morning exercises. The condition was pronounced hernia, an aggravation of a condition discovered six years ago when Dawes took his physical examination for his commission in the army.

laid before the delegates tomorrow. The council chiefly urged that the Federation assume a more active part in national and state primaries and continue its non-partisan committees set up for the La Follette campaign in an effort to secure the election of candidates regardless of party who best would serve labor's interests.

In this way, council members explained, organized labor will not be handicapped by being a unit of any one party, but would be enabled to advance its programs through all parties, or any political movement which it thinks at the time offers the best opportunity for gain. Further, it was declared, a non-partisan course would assist labor in increasing its representation in congress, thus being in a better position to enact legislation.

This decision to the council has satisfied the pro and anti-third party factions, headed respectively by William H. Johnston, president of the Machinists and a member of the La Follette national committee, and Major George Berry, president of the Pressmen's union and defeated candidate for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Johnston said today he did not want the Federation to unite in the formation of a third party and would ask labor's support of a new political movement after it was established and found to be a going proposition. Berry declared he now planned no assault upon the third party effort, but was made on the floor to devote to the non-partisan course.

Legislative Proposals.

Three major planks in the Federation's legislative program for congress already have been agreed upon. First and foremost is enactment of the Howell-Barkley bill, abolishing the Railroad Labor Board. The board is now particularly obnoxious to labor leaders because of its recent decision compelling workers to appear before it. Next is repeal of the Esch-Cummings Transportation Act. The third is enactment of constitutional amendment by which congress by a two thirds vote may override the decisions of the Supreme Court.

As in the past the convention is expected to pass resolutions denouncing the Ku Klux Klan, and opposing American recognition of Soviet Russia. These may produce fights, especially the latter, because of recognition of Russia by Great Britain and France. Today's session was devoted chiefly to routine, welcome speeches and presentation of the executive council's annual report, which did not include the recommendation of politics. A joint session with delegates of the Mexican Federation of Labor meeting across the Rio Grande in Juarez, also was featured. American delegations tomorrow will go to Juarez for a joint meeting.

violation of the Volstead act, was cited by the council as an instance of alleged autocracy. Grossman was re-arrested and confined in jail.

Direct election of Federal judges, recall of judges, recall of judicial decisions, and delegation to Congress of power to repeal legislation declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court were discussed as possible measures to curb judicial powers. Amendments to the Clayton and Sherman acts, both of which have been used as a means of restraining labor, was urged.

To further the cause of labor in its legal arguments, the report asserted the legal information bureau established by the Federation has been placed upon a secure and useful basis.

Co-Operated Banks.

The nation's twenty-three labor-operated banks were referred to with pride, but workers were cautioned against buying stocks and securities of private companies, offered under the guise that they are labor institutions.

The drive against competition from convict labor again was emphasized. Organization of insurance companies within unions was strongly recommended by a special committee's report contained within the council's report.

This committee, composed of Matthew Woll and G. W. Perkins, urged a "capital stock company" to operate on the legal reserve system and on the participating policy plan only—to write both ordinary and industrial forms of policies—to be owned by the American Federation of Labor and its constituent elements, and directed by the heads of these organizations.

The committee declared the organized company "would constitute an achievement such as has seldom been equaled." The committee declared itself opposed to the operation by the American Federation of Labor, as such, of the company.

The report outlined the fight labor has constantly waged against the Esch-Cummings act creating the Railroad Labor Board, and the bill which has been drafted to abolish that organization—the Howell-Barkley bill now pending in congress. This bill would provide what the council believes in a more simple method of avoiding labor troubles, embodying voluntary arbitration.

Old age pensions again received endorsement by the council. Efforts to rid the Panama Canal zone of alien labor, consisting largely of British subjects from the West Indies, were outlined and the Federation urged to continue the fight. Better housing conditions and pay were urged for the government employees.

Payment of import duties on Philippine products in the same amounts paid by other countries was declared essential. Continuation of the Federation's educational activities was urged. Every affiliated union should provide technical apparatus and other facilities for use in trade education.

Use Labor Day Parade.

"Labor has no complaint to make against the Sixty-eighth Congress," said the report, "as there are a sufficient number of the members who are faithful to the people and who will prevent malevolent legislation, and at the same time enact benevolent legislation."

Steel baggage cars to lessen risk to railway employees were advocated. Objection was noted to bills in Congress providing for conscription of labor whenever the President proclaimed an emergency. It was contended that this should agree with conscription of "material resources of the country in time of war."

Belief that the postal wage increase bill will be passed over President Coolidge's veto at the next session of Congress was expressed.

Congress was urged to remove Federal and municipal tax free securities from that category.

Full utilization of playground and other recreational advantages was declared essential to good health of workers who have small opportunity to use other than a few muscles.

The opinion of the council in several disputes involving membership jurisdiction was included in the report. Workers engaged in erecting economizers in boiler construction were classified as plumbers and steam fitters; an agreement between cap and hat makers' unions was published.

Friendly relations with Mexican and Central American labor stressed with the suggestion that the Federation should find some means of ally itself with other American union organizations to prevent European aggression.

More attention to Labor Day was urged, with the parade stressed as a means of rousing interest.

measure of economic recovery in Europe. Third, the complete recovery of our own industry and commerce (aside from agriculture) great stability of prices, high production, full employment, expanding foreign trade and prosperity throughout the business world.

The general eve of business activity was decidedly higher than in the so-called "very prosperous year of 1919," according to Hoover. Manufacturing production dropped slightly as compared to 1923, but mineral production rose materially.

"Notwithstanding far lower prices than in 1919, the value of sales of retail stores were lower indexed than in 1919 they may be explained as wholly due to the decline in price. Based on the calendar year of 1923 as 100, the general average of wholesale price dropped from 156 to 123 to 159 in 1924."

Discussing a slight slackening in production at the close of the fiscal year, Hoover said that there was a recovery in September which for manufacturing production stood 13 points higher than in June.

Fraser Returns From Columbus.

City Health Commissioner John Fraser returned home today from Columbus, where he attended a conference of health commissioners from all over the state.

Dr. M. C. Carr, health commissioner, of Wallaceville and Dr. T. T. Church, Salem county health commissioner, also attended the state meeting, which accepted all of last week.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—With the exception of the oil stocks, which continued to display an irregular tone, prices of speculative stocks were swept forward in the early trading today in another unusually active session. Buying was concentrated on the Railroad, Motor and Equipment and a few of the high priced steel industries, but all departments of the market felt the stimulus of a heavy accumulation of weekend buying orders which found the market comparatively bare of offerings.

Continuation of easy money conditions and hardening of commodity prices were the most important outside factors affecting stock prices. The weekly compilation of Irving Fisher showed an advance from 159.3 to 153.8 in wholesale commodity prices. Thus confirming the higher quotations for basic commodities announced in the latter part of last week.

The Washab and Missouri Kansas and Texas stocks were the leaders in the forward movement in the latter part of the week. Washab, preferred, "A" advancing to a new high at 54 1/2. New York Central, Atchafalpa and other of the dividend rails sold in good volume near the best prices of the year to date. Union Pacific was strong.

New forward movements were started in a number of Specialty stocks including Radio Corporation, up 2 1/2 points to a new high at 37 1/2. Asaph, in a week of 9 points won. In new high ground at 52; General Electric up 5 1/2 points at 27 1/2; Gulf States Steel up 1/2 at 76 1/2; Mack Trucks up 1/2 at 111; May Department stores up 3 to 100 1/2; Industrial Alcohol up 1 1/2 at 86, following its five point rise of last week.

Oils were held back by heavy profit taking, resulting in fractional losses in Marland, Conoco, Sinclair, and other active stocks in this group. Sugar stocks reflected higher prices for raw and refined sugar; Equipment stocks took a spurt under the leadership of Baldwin gained nearly 2 points; Independent Steels followed the lead of United States Steel into fractional gains; Davison Chemical was reactionary and lost two points, at 39. Outside markets were steady with wheat prices practically unchanged; cotton and corn fractionally higher. Call money renewed at 2 per cent.

Two Pottery Workers Are Jailed After Auto Kills Man

Spencer Risden and John Lyan, Mt. Clemens pottery workers, are being held today by the police at Ecorse, Michigan, as the result of a manslaughter charge which has been filed against the former following the death of Edward Dunn, Ecorse man, a few days ago.

Risden and Lyan, police claim, were enroute to East Liverpool in an automobile when Dunn was run down. Risden, following his arrest, admitted striking Dunn, but asserted that he placed the injured man in his car and was taking him home when Dunn expressed a desire to be left out of the car.

He was assisted to the ground by his claim and was left sitting by the side of the road. His lifeless body was found the next morning. The owners of the car were traced through the license number taken at the time of the accident and when the pair returned to Mt. Clemens from East Liverpool, they were arrested and turned over to Ecorse officials.

James Brennan's Auto Accessory Shop Hit by Fire

Fire, which broke out in the automobile accessory shop operated by James Brennan, 418 Main street, Wellsville, shortly before noon today, scorched the interior of the two-story frame building, destroyed a small part of Brennan's equipment and partially consumed the roof.

Stock and equipment owned by Miss Sample, photographer, on the second floor, was damaged by water and fire. The flames originated, it was declared as Brennan was pouring alcohol from one container to another. The loss will reach approximately $500, covered by insurance.

down the expansive auditorium aisles to the evangelist.

Wives and husbands came together in the evening service and some of the latter, who had made the decision in the afternoon, accompanied the former to the front at night.

Bulwarked by many churchmen the newcomers were asked by Dr. Biedewolf "if they proposed to proceed and carry on in the Christian life?" The unhesitating and unflinching "I will" rang out in tones that reached the farthest recesses of the structure and for added emphasis were repeated.

"There can be no doubt of the sincerity of these folks," said he, "commented the evangelist as he called on Dr. J. O. Campbell to make the consecrating and accepting prayer. This was followed by those making the move praying audibly a petition suggested by Dr. Biedewolf.

Similar scenes were enacted during the men's mass meeting in the afternoon at the tabernacle. Deep conviction marked the service which was followed by many taking the initial step towards a new manner of living.

Sunday School Decision Day.

Decision day of a natural nature for the co-operating Sunday Schools was had in the morning at the tabernacle. Schools, meeting at their various churches, held brief sessions and there, with banners aloft and in several instances led by orchestras and bands, marched to the Second and Washington streets tabernacle.

Acting as marshal of his school, Kelsey Bennett arranged a band of the First Methodist Protestant musicians and these led the school to the meeting. Later it divided honors with the Salvation Army band in contributing preliminary music.

East End Sunday Schools, Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal, the Second Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian made admirable showings as did the Methodist Episcopal School of Newell, all of which arrived on the scene early.

Emmanuel Presbyterian and Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal came in goodly number from the hilltops of the Northside, while the First U. P., the First Baptist and First Presbyterian made most commendable showings. Led by Joseph Blazier, Jr., who carried the banner and Superintendent Harold Allison, the latter being closest to the tabernacle, had the shortest distance to parade.

Numerous adults and young folks, inspired by their teachers, following Dr. Biedewolf's address, made the move that took them into the church from their respective schools in the morning.

Arriving early at the tabernacle Dr. Biedewolf was an interested spectator as the Biblical pupils wended their way to their allotted places in the building. He ordered the lights turned on at once which took away the sombreness of the murky day.

Banners, utilized, were left in the tabernacle, and will be used for additional platform decorations.

Women's Meeting.

Before a large gathering of women at the First U. P. church on Sunday afternoon Miss Wilma E. Davis, minister and accompanist of the evangelistic party, preached following an appealing musical program. Her subject was "Redeeming Love" which she exemplified by the story of the prophet Hosea and his wife, the latter of whom, after several years of marital felicity, yielded to the prevailing idleness of the day and then after a period of denunciation was won back by pleading.

The musical offerings preceding the sermon by Miss Davis included a psalm song, "Whiter Than Snow," by Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, a duet by Mrs. William Gerber and Mrs. Baker, "Oh, Love That Will Not Let Me Go," and a solo by Miss Linda Warner, "Hope Thou in God."

Announcements were made of an all-day personal work program for Tuesday, with factory night on Tuesday evening. Women in joint parade from the Carnegie Library, mutual meeting place, and led by three bands employees from seventeen potteries and other East Liverpool, Chester and Newell plants will go to the tabernacle in a body.

Invocation was made on Sunday night by Rev. John Dimit, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church. Mr. McEwan sang, "We Shall Shine Like the Stars."

Proceeding Dr. Biedewolf's sermon exquisite singing was contributed by the 500-voiced choir under Mr. McEwan's direction. Particularly appealing were the variations attending the popular hymn, "Rolled Away."

Dr. Biedewolf's subject on Sunday night was "How Will Thou Do With the Swelling of the Jordan?" in which he disclosed the only refuge from the ravages of sin as wild beasts along Palestine's noted river sought higher and higher caves from its overflow to be the atonement of Christ's sacrifice on the cross.

Mass Meeting of Men.

Speaking to a mass meeting of men in the afternoon on the subject, "Sold Out," which he founded on the words in Exodus, "And Easan sold his birthright." Dr. Biedewolf declared it was not true that everybody "had his price" despite the fact that many did.

"There is John R. Mott," he said, "who is world secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and whom the late President Wilson wanted to make minister to China, refused an offer of $50,000 a year to head a banking institution while only getting a salary of $5,000 per annum."

"Mott when approached with the financial proffer tremblingly said: 'Gentlemen, I am sorry I have so lived in your presence as to cause you to think I would be tempted by an offer like this. He is still on the job trying to save the souls of the young men of the country.'"

In turn the evangelist discussed impelling causes of soul sales: Power, political preference, money and lust. All of these, he said, had caused unnumbered persons to go permanently astray.

Christianity, he pointed out, was the only panacea for this selling out process and it would "pardon the past, give help for the present and encourage hope for the future."

In conclusion he declared the step

105 Men Sing.

Under direction of Mr. McEwan 105 Men sitting in the choir seats, sang during the preliminary proceedings before the afternoon discourse.

A feature of the exercises also was a male quartet number, "Through Your Sins be as Scarlet," which was sung by Carl and Emmett Gaston, G. A. Richards and John C. Usher, all of the First United Presbyterian church.

Mr. McEwan sang "Meet Mother in the Skies." The invocation was made by Dr. F. A. Dean, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, and the prayer for those who accepted the invitation at the close of the service was offered by Adjutant J. H. Dean of the Salvation Army.

Miss Edwina Wilson acted as pianist at the men's meeting during the preliminary service.

With the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal, First Presbyterian, United Baptist, First and Second United Presbyterian, Newell Methodist Episcopal, First Methodist Protestant, Pennsylvania Avenue and Anderson Methodist Episcopal, Emmanuel Presbyterian and representatives from several other churches which later were augmented by those attending the regular congregational services, an inspiring meeting was held on Sunday morning.

Dr. Biedewolf Urges Decision.

Before the invitation was given when hundreds of young people and many adults made a decision for church alliance, Dr. Biedewolf spoke informally on the necessity for such a step.

Proceeding his address, Dr. J. O. Campbell, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church, read the first psalm, Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church led in prayer and Mr. McEwan sang the final song composed by the late E. O. Excell, before his passing in Louisville, Ky., some time ago, "I will follow Thee." During the preliminary song service Mr. McEwan had Mr. Heaton sing, "Jesus Will."

"One to every man and woman as to a nation comes the time to decide for their future," declared Dr. Biedewolf. "The Christian life only satisfies; it keeps and is worth while. One of the hymns appropriate to this situation: 'I gave My Life for Thee, What Hast Thou Done for Me?'"

The consecration prayer in the morning services following the reception of many of the invitation given was made by Rev. John

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs. Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your pharmacist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs. Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your pharmacist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

HIGH GRIDDERS LOSE AT TORONTO

Wellsville High gridders were handed a surprise package at Toronto Saturday afternoon, the Orange and Black eleven coming out second best in an encounter with the Jefferson county gridders. The count was 26 to 0.

Four Musical Kings With Classy Revue At Strand Theatre

Offering a musical repertoire complete from the classic to the popular music of the day, the Four Musical Kings, one of the features of Arthur Hawk's offering, the Sunshine Revue, appearing at the Strand theater this week, capture the hearts of the music-loving public from the moment of their first appearance on the stage.

Led by Arthur Hawk, who is a mandolin and banjo player par excellence, the quartette offers a program of harmony different from the usual instrumental numbers featured in the production of today. Barney Kleeber, Claude Reed and Tom Collins complete the harmony four, whose playing and singing score the biggest hits in the revue.

Tom Collins, whose comedy antics carry his audience into the realm of laughter during the entire production, carries his characterization into the work of the quartette and introduces additional punch into the music.

Aside from producing and staging the revue and leading the quartette, Arthur Hawk is also the composer of many of the musical scores used in the production. His Kiwanis March, written during last season's tour, has been played from coast to coast before the Kiwanis Clubs and has scored sensational hits everywhere.

In addition to the Musical Kings, the Sunshine Revue features Helen Kennedy, the dainty soubrette, Tom Collins, Billy Cullen, and the Sunshine Beauty chorus, with elaborate scenery and costume effects and a change of program.

De Wolf Hopper Will Appear Here In Comic Opera

De Wolf Hopper, the inimitable, and his comic opera company will be the double attraction coming to the Ceramic theatre Tuesday, Nov. 25. The opera that will be presented is "The Mikado" by many considered the best of the various operas on which Gilbert and Sullivan collaborated. Its humor is as infectious today as it was when first given to the public many years ago and with its melodies there are no doubt a greater number of music lovers that are thoroughly familiar than with any other that have followed them. Where is the music nowadays that will compare with "The Moon and I," "A Is Happy, B Is Not," "Hearts Do Not Break" and a dozen others not to overlook "Let the Punishment Fit the Crime," "The Willow," "I've Got A Little List," "Taken From the County Jail" and others of a light order. Of course Hopper will be seen as "Koko," as "The Mikado" would seem incomplete without him in the role of the Lord High Executioner, a role that is inseparable from the name of Hopper. The star will be supported by what has been proclaimed to be "the best singing organization heard in comic opera since the days of the Bostonians."

DAWES JOKES IN HOSPITAL

Vice-president-elect
Undergoes Operation
in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Charles G. Dawes, vice-president-elect, today was reported to be recovering at the Evanston hospital where he underwent an operation for hernia yesterday. Attending physicians today pronounced Dawes' general condition excellent for rapid recovery, but declared that the nature of the operation would require that he remain in bed for approximately two weeks.

Dawes was operated upon yesterday afternoon. A local anesthetic being employed, and while being removed from the operating room he joked with attendants. A few hours later, he dropped into a deep, normal sleep and surgeons declared the operation entirely successful.

The immediate operation was recommended by Dawes' personal physician who was summoned yesterday after the vice president-elect had noticed slight pain and swelling in his abdomen after completing his morning exercises. The condition was pronounced hernia, an aggravation of a condition discovered six years ago when Dawes took his physical examination for his commission in the army.

laid before the delegates tomorrow. The council chiefly urged that the Federation assume a more active part in national and state primaries and continue its non-partisan committees set up for the La Follette campaign in an effort to secure the election of candidates regardless of party who best would serve labor's interests.

In this way, council members explained, organized labor will not be handicapped by being a unit of any one party, but would be enabled to advance its programs through all parties, or any political movement which it thinks at the time offers the best opportunity for gain. Further, it was declared, a non-partisan course would assist labor in increasing its representation in congress, thus being in a better position to enact legislation.

This decision to the council has satisfied the pro and anti-third party factions, headed respectively by William H. Johnston, president of the Machinists and a member of the La Follette national committee, and Major George Berry, president of the Pressmen's union and defeated candidate for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Johnston said today he did not want the Federation to unite in the formation of a third party, and would ask labor's support of a new political movement after it was established and found to be a going proposition. Berry declared he now planned no assault upon that effort unless an effort were made on the floor to devote from the non-partisan course.

Legislative proposals. Three major planks in the Federation's legislative program for congress already have been agreed upon. First and foremost is enactment of the Howell-Barkley bill, abolishing the Railroad Labor board. The board is now particularly obnoxious to labor leaders because of its recent decision compelling workers to appear before it. Next is repeal of the Esch-Cummings Transportation Act. The third is enactment of constitutional amendment by which congress by a two thirds vote may override the decisions of the Supreme Court.

As in the past the convention is expected to pass resolutions denouncing the Ku Klux Klan, and opposing American recognition of Soviet Russia. These may produce fights, especially the latter, because of recognition of Russia by Great Britain and France. Today's session was devoted chiefly to routine, welcome speeches and presentation of the executive council's annual report, which did not include the recommendation of politics. A joint session with delegates of the Mexican Federation of Labor meeting across the Rio Grande in Juarez, also was featured. American delegations tomorrow will go to Juarez for a joint meeting.

violation of the Volstead act, was cited by the council as an instance of alleged autocracy. Grossman was re-arrested and confined in jail.

Direct election of Federal judges, recall of judges, recall of judicial decisions, and delegation to Congress of power to repeal legislation declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court were discussed as possible measures to curb judicial powers. Amendments to the Clayton and Sherman acts, both of which have been used as a means of restraining labor, was urged.

To further the cause of labor in its legal arguments, the report asserted the legal information bureau established by the Federation has been placed upon a secure and useful basis.

Co-Operated Banks.
The nation's twenty-three labor-operated banks were referred to with pride, but workers were cautioned against buying stocks and securities of private companies, offered under the guise that they are labor institutions.

The drive against competition from convict labor again was emphasized. Organization of insurance companies within unions was strongly recommended by a special committee's report contained within the council's report. This committee, composed of Matthew Woll and G. W. Perkins, urged a "capital stock company to operate on the legal reserve system and on the participating policy plan only—to write both ordinary and industrial forms of policies—to be owned by the American Federation of Labor and its constituent elements, and directed by the heads of these organizations."

The committee declared the organized company "would constitute an achievement such as has seldom been equaled." The committee declared itself opposed to the operation by the American Federation of Labor, as such, of the company.

The report outlined the fight labor has constantly waged against the Esch-Cummings act creating the Railroad Labor Board, and the bill which has been drafted to abolish that organization—the Howell-Barkley bill now pending in congress. This bill would provide what the council believes in a more simple method of avoiding labor troubles, embodying voluntary arbitration.

Old age pensions again received endorsement by the council.

Efforts to rid the Panama Canal zone of alien labor, consisting largely of British subjects from the West Indies, were outlined and the Federation urged to continue the fight. Better housing conditions and pay were urged for the government employees.

Payment of import duties on Philippine products in the same amounts paid by other countries was declared essential.

Continuation of the Federation's educational activities was urged. Every affiliated union should provide technical apparatus and other necessities for use in trade education.

Urge Labor Day Parade.
"Labor has no complaint to make against the Sixty-eighth Congress," said the report, "as there are a sufficient number of the members who are faithful to the people and who will prevent malevolent legislation, and at the same time enact benevolent legislation."

Steel baggage cars to lessen risk to railway employees were advocated. Objection was noted to bills in Congress providing for conscription of labor whenever the President proclaimed an emergency. It was contended that this should agree with conscription of "material resources of the country in time of war."

Belief that the postal wage increase bill will be passed over President Coolidge's veto at the next session of Congress was expressed.

Congress was urged to remove Federal and municipal tax free securities from the category.

Full utilization of playground and other recreational advantages was declared essential to good health of workers who have small opportunity to use other than a few muscles.

The opinion of the council in several disputes involving membership jurisdiction was included in the report. Workmen engaged in erecting economizers in boiler construction were classified as plumbers and steam fitters; agreement between cap and hat makers' unions was published.

Friendly relations with Mexican and Central American labor stressed with the suggestion that the Federation should find some means of allying itself with other American union organizations to prevent European aggression.

More attention to Labor Day was urged, with the parade stressed as a means of rousing interest.

measure of economic recovery in Europe. Third, the complete recovery of our own industry and commerce (aside from agriculture) great stability of prices, high production, full employment, expanding foreign trade and prosperity throughout the business world.

The general eve of business activity was decidedly higher than in the so-called "very prosperous year of 1913," according to Hoover. Manufacturing production dropped slightly as compared to 1923, but mineral production rose materially.

"Notwithstanding far lower prices than in 1919, the value of sales of retail stores were lower indexed than in 1919 they may be explained as wholly due to the decline in price. Based on the calendar year of 1923 as 100, the general average of wholesale price dropped from 156 to 123 to 150 in 1924."

Discussing a slight slackening in production at the close of the fiscal year, Hoover said that there was a recovery in September which for manufacturing production stood 33 points higher than in June.

Fraser Returns From Columbus.
City Health Commissioner John Fraser returned home today from Columbus, where he attended a conference of health commissioners from all over the state.

Dr. J. G. Carr, health commissioner of Wellsboro and Dr. T. C. Church, Salem, county health commissioner, also attended the state meeting, which occupied all of last week.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—With the exception of the oil stocks, which continued to display an irregular tone, prices of speculative stocks were swept forward in the early trading today in another unusually active session. Buying was concentrated on the Railroad, Motor and Equipment and a few of the high priced pool industrial, but all departments of the market felt the stimulus of a heavy accumulation of weekend buying orders which found the market comparatively bare of offerings.

Continuation of easy money conditions and hardening of commodity prices were the most important outside factors affecting stock prices. The weekly compilation of Irving Fisher showed an advance from 150.3 to 151.8 in wholesale commodity prices. Thus confirming the higher quotations for basic commodities announced in the latter part of last week.

The Wash and Missouri Kansas and Texas stocks were the leaders in the forward movement in the Speculative Index. Wash preferred "A" advancing to a new high at 54 1/2. New York Central, Atchafalpa and other of the dividend rich stocks in good volume near the best prices of the year to date. Union Pacific was strong.

New forward movements were started in a number of Specialty stocks including Radio Corporation, up 2 1/2 points to a new high at 37 1/2. Asphalt, in a gain of 9 points from the low of last week; General Asphalt, in new high ground at 52; General Electric up 5 1/2 points at 27 1/2; Gulf States Steel up 1 1/2 at 111; May Department Stores up 3 to 100 1/2; Industrial Alcohol up 1 1/2 at 86, following its five point rise of last week.

Oils were held back by heavy profit taking, resulting in fractional losses in Marland, Cosden, Sinclair, and other active stocks in this group. Sugar stocks reflected higher prices for raw and refined sugar. Equipment stocks took a short under the leadership of Baldwin gained nearly 2 points; Independent Steels followed the lead of United States Steel into fractionally higher prices. Davison Chemical was reactionary and lost two points, at 39.

Outside markets were steady, with cotton prices practically unchanged; wheat and corn fractionally higher. Call money renewed at 2 per cent.

Two Pottery Workers Are Jailed After Auto Kills Man

Spencer Ridsen and John Lyan, Mt. Clemens pottery workers, are being held today by the police at Ecorse, Michigan, as the result of a manslaughter charge, which has been filed against the former following the death of Edward Dunn, Ecorse man, a few days ago.

Ridsen and Lyan, police claim, were enroute to East Liverpool in an automobile when Dunn was run down. Ridsen, following his arrest, admitted striking Dunn, but asserted that he placed the injured man in his car and was taking him home when Dunn expressed a desire to be left out of the car.

He was assisted to the ground they claim and was left sitting by the side of the road. His feeble body was found the next morning. The owners of the car were traced through the license number taken at the time of the accident and when the pair returned to Mt. Clemens from East Liverpool, they were arrested and turned over to Ecorse officials.

James Brennan's Auto Accessory Shop Hit by Fire

Fire, which broke out in the automobile accessory shop operated by James Brennan, 418 Main street, Wellsville, shortly before noon today, scorched the interior of the two-story frame building, destroyed a small part of Brennan's equipment and partially consumed the roof.

Stock and equipment owned by Miss Sample, photographer, on the second floor, was damaged by water and fire. The flames originated, it was declared as Brennan was pouring alcohol from one container to another. The loss will reach approximately $500, covered by insurance.

down the expansive auditorium aisles to the evangelist.

Wives and husbands came together in the evening service and some of the latter who had made the decision in the afternoon, accompanied the former to the front at night.

Bulwarked by many churchmen the newcomers were asked by Dr. Biederwolf "If they proposed to proceed and carry on in the Christian life?" The unhesitating and unfaltering "I will" rang out in tones that reached the farthest recesses of the structure and for added emphasis were repeated.

"There can be no doubt of the sincerity of these folks, can there?" commented the evangelist as he called on Dr. J. O. Campbell to make the consecrating and accepting prayer. This was followed by those making the move praying audibly a petition suggested by Dr. Biederwolf.

Similar scenes were enacted during the entire morning session in the afternoon at the tabernacle. Deep conviction marked the service which was followed by many taking the initial step towards a new manner of living.

Sunday School Decision Day.
Decision day of a mutual nature for the co-operating Sunday Schools was had in the morning at the tabernacle. Schools, meeting at their various churches, held brief sessions and, with banners aloft and in several instances led by orchestras and bands, marched to the Second and Washington streets tabernacle. Acting as marshal of his school, Kelsey Hennes arranged a band of the First Methodist Protestant musicians and these led the school to the meeting. Later it divided honors with the Salvation Army band in contributing preliminary music.

East End Sunday Schools, Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal, the Second Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian made admirable showings as did the Methodist Episcopal School of Newell, all of which arrived on the scene early.

Emmanuel Presbyterian and Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal came in goodly number from the hillsides of the Northside, while the First U. P., the First Baptist and First Presbyterian made most commendable showings. Led by Joseph Blazier, Jr., who carried the banner and Superintendent Harold Allen, the latter being closest to the tabernacle, had the shortest distance to parade.

Numerous adults and young folks, inspired by their teachers, following Dr. Biederwolf's address, made the move that took them into the church from their respective schools in the morning.

Arriving early at the tabernacle Dr. Biederwolf was an interested spectator as the Biblical pupils wended their way to their allotted places in the building. He ordered the lights turned on at once which took away the somberness of the murky day.

Women's Meeting.

Before a large gathering of women at the First U. P. church on Thursday afternoon Miss Wilma E. Davis, minister and accompanist of the evangelistic party, preached following an appealing musical program. Her subject was "Redeeming Love" which she exemplified by the story of the prophet Hosea and his wife, the latter of whom, after several years of marital felicity, yielded to the prevailing idleness of the day and then after a period of denunciation was won back by pleading.

The musical offerings preceding the sermon by Miss Davis included a psalm song, "Whiter Than Snow," by Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, a duet by Mrs. William Gerber and Mrs. Baker, "Oh, Love That Will Not Let Me Go," and a solo by Miss Wilda Warner, "Hope Thou in God."

Announcements were made of an all-day personal work program for Tuesday, with factory night on Thursday evening when in joint parade from the Carnegie Library, mutual meeting place, and led by three band employees from East Liverpool, Chester and Newell plants will go to the tabernacle in a body.

Invocation was made on Sunday night by Rev. John Dimit, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church. Mr. McEwan sang, "We Shall Shine Like the Stars."

Preceding Dr. Biederwolf's sermon exquisite singing was contributed by the 500-voiced choir under Mr. McEwan's direction. Particularly appealing were the variations attending the popular hymn, "Roll Away."

Dr. Biederwolf's subject on Sunday night was "How Will Thou Do With the Swelling of the Jordan?" in which he disclosed the only refuge from the ravages of sin as wild beasts along Palestine's noted river sought higher and higher caves from its overflow to be the atonement of Christ's sacrifice on the cross.

Mass Meeting of Men.

Speaking to a mass meeting of men in the afternoon on the subject, "Sold Out," which he founded on the words in Exodus, "And Esau sold his birthright," Dr. Biederwolf declared it was not true that everybody "had his price" despite the fact that many did.

"There is John R. Mott," he said, "who is world secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and whom the late President Wilson wanted to make minister to China, refused an offer of $50,000 a year to head a banking institution while only getting a salary of $5,000 per annum."

"Mott when approached with the financial proffer tremblingly said: 'Gentlemen, I am sorry I have so lived in your presence as to cause you to think I would be tempted by any offer like this.' He is still on the job trying to save the souls of the young men of the country."

In turn the evangelist discussed impelling causes of soul sales: Power, political preference, money and lust. All of these, he said, had caused unnumbered persons to go permanently astray.

Christianity, he pointed out, was the only panacea for this selling out process and it would "pardon the past, give help for the present and engender hope for the future."

In conclusion he declared the step

105 Men Sing.

Under direction of Mr. McEwan 105 men sitting in the choir seats, sang during the preliminary proceedings before the afternoon discourse.

A feature of the exercises also was a male quartette number, "Through Your Sins be as Scarlet," which was sung by Carl and Emmett Gaston, G. A. Richards and John C. Usher all of the First United Presbyterian church.

Mr. McEwan sang "Meet Mother in the Skies." The invocation was made by Dr. F. A. Dean, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, and the prayer for those who accepted the invitation at the close of the service was offered by Adjutant J. H. Dean of the Salvation Army.

Miss Edwina Wilson acted as pianist at the men's meeting during the preliminary service.

With the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal, First Presbyterian, First Baptist, First and Second United Presbyterian, Newell Methodist Episcopal, First Methodist Protestant, Pennsylvania Avenue and Anderson Methodist Episcopal, Emmanuel Presbyterian and representatives from several other churches which later were augmented by those attending the regular congregational services, an inspiring meeting was held on Sunday morning.

Dr. Biederwolf Urges Decision. Before the invitation was given when hundreds of young people and many adults made a decision for church alliance, Dr. Biederwolf spoke informally on the necessity for such a step.

after it.

Heaven, he held, will admit of communion not only with Christ, but with friends and relatives as well; it will be a busy place with work for all; it will be minus sin, suffering and death; it will be comfortable and big enough for all requirements and its beauty and splendor can not be conceived. God, the author of the Solar system, can be depended upon to make it what He promises it to be.

"I believe in heaven," he said "because God said there is one, because justice demands such a place to right earthly evils and wrongs and because every instinct of the human soul asserts its existence."

The invocation on Saturday night was made by Rev. Mr. Schaeffer, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Newell. Mr. McEwan sang "I Shall Be Satisfied" before the sermon and "Shall the Circle Be Unbroken" after it.

Heaven, he held, will admit of communion not only with Christ, but with friends and relatives as well; it will be a busy place with work for all; it will be minus sin, suffering and death; it will be comfortable and big enough for all requirements and its beauty and splendor can not be conceived. DAWES JOKES IN HOSPITAL

Vice-president-elect Undergoes Operation in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Charles G. Dawes, vice-president-elect, today was reported "very much recovered" at the Evanston hospital where he underwent an operation for hernia yesterday. Attending physicians today pronounced Dawes' general condition excellent for rapid recovery, but declared that the nature of the operation would require that he remain in bed for approximately two weeks.

Dawes was operated upon yesterday afternoon. A local anesthetic being employed, and while being removed from the operating room he joked with attendants. A few hours later, he dropped into a deep, normal sleep and surgeons declared the operation entirely successful.

The immediate operation was recommended by Dawes' personal physician who was summoned yesterday after the vice president elect had noticed a slight pain and swelling in his abdomen after completing his morning exercises. Condition was pronounced hernia, an aggravation of a condition discovered six years ago when Dawes took his physical examination for his commission in the army.

laid before the delegates tomorrow. The council chiefly urged that the Federation assume a more active part in national and state primaries and continue its non-partisan campaign in an effort to secure the election of candidates regardless of party who best would serve labor's interests.

In this way, council members explained, organized labor will not be handicapped by being a unit of any one party, but would be enabled to advance its programs through all parties, or any political movement which it thinks at the time offers the best opportunity for gain. Further, it was declared, a non-partisan course would assist labor in increasing its representation in congress, thus being in a better position to enact legislation.

This decision to the council has satisfied the pro and anti-third party factions, headed respectively by William H. Johnston, president of the Machinists and a member of the La Follette national committee, and Major George Berry, president of the Pressmen's union and defeated candidate for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Johnston said today he did not want the Federation to unite in the formation of a third party and would ask labor's support of a new political movement after it was established and found to be a going proposition. Berry declared he now planned no assault upon that effort unless an effort were made on the floor to deviate from the non-partisan course.

Legislative Proposals.

Three major planks in the Federation's legislative program for congress already have been agreed upon. First and foremost is enactment of the Howell-Barkley bill, abolishing the Railroad Labor Board. The board is now particularly obnoxious to labor leaders because of its recent decision compelling workers to appear before it. Next is repeal of the Esch-Cummings Transportation Act. The third is enactment of constitutional amendment by which congress by a two thirds vote may override the decisions of the Supreme Court.

As in the past the convention is expected to pass resolutions denouncing the Ku Klux Klan, and opposing American recognition of Soviet Russia. These may produce fights, especially the latter, because of recognition of Russia by Great Britain and France. Today's session was devoted chiefly to routine, welcome speeches and presentation of the executive council's annual report, which did not include the recommendation of politics. A joint session with delegates of the Mexican Federation of Labor meeting across the Rio Grande in Juarez, also was featured. American delegations tomorrow will go to Juarez for a joint meeting.

violation of the Volstead act, was cited by the council as an instance of alleged autocracy. Grossman was re-elected and confined in jail.

Direct election of Federal judges, recall of judges, recall of judicial decisions, and delegation to Congress of power to repeal legislation declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court were discussed as possible measures to curb judicial powers. Amendments to the Clayton and Sherman acts, both of which have been used as a means of restraining labor, was urged.

To further the cause of labor in its legal arguments, the report asserted the legal information bureau established by the Federation has been placed upon a secure and useful basis.

Co-Operated Banks.

The nation's twenty-three labor-operated banks were referred to with pride, but workers were cautioned against buying stocks and securities of private companies, offered under the guise that they are labor institutions.

The drive against competition from convict labor again was emphasized.

Organization of insurance companies within unions was strongly recommended by a special committee's report contained within the council's report. This committee, composed of Matthew Woll and G. W. Perkins, urged "a capital stock company to operate on the legal reserve system and on the participating policy plan only—to write both ordinary and industrial forms of policies—to be owned by the American Federation of Labor and its constituent elements, and directed by the heads of these organizations."

The committee declared the organized company "would constitute an achievement such as has seldom been equaled." The committee declared itself opposed to the operation by the American Federation of Labor, as such, of the company.

The report outlined the fight labor has constantly waged against the Esch-Cummings act creating the Railway Labor Board, and the bill which has been drafted to abolish that organization—the Howell-Barkley bill now pending in congress. This bill would provide what the council believed in a simple method of avoiding labor troubles, embodying voluntary arbitration.

Old age pensions again received endorsement by the council.

Efforts to rid the Panama Canal zone of alien labor, consisting largely of British subjects from the West Indies, were outlined and the Federation urged to continue the fight. Better housing conditions and pay were urged for the government employees.

Payment of import duties on Philippine products in the same amounts paid by other countries was declared essential.

Continuation of the Federation's every affiliated union should provide technical apparatus and other facilities for use in trade education.

Urge Labor Day Parade.

"Labor has no complaint to make against the Sixty-eighth Congress," said the report, "as there are a sufficient number of the members who are faithful to the people and who will prevent malevolent legislation, and at the same time enact benevolent legislation."

Steel baggage cars to lessen risk to railway employees were advocated.

Objection was noted to bills in Congress providing for conscription of labor whenever the President proclaimed an emergency. It was contended that this should agree with conscription of "material resources of the country in time of war."

Belief that the postal wage increase bill will be passed over President Coolidge's veto at the next session of Congress was expressed.

Congress was urged to remove Federal and municipal tax free securities from that category.

Full utilization of playground and other recreational advantages was declared essential to good health of workers who have small opportunity to use other than a few muscles.

The opinion of the council in several disputes involving membership jurisdiction was included in the report. Workers engaged in erecting economies in boiler construction were classified as plumbers and steam fitters; an agreement between cap and hat makers' unions was published.

Friendly relations with Mexican and Central American labor stressed with the suggestion that the Federation should find some means of allying itself with other American union organizations to prevent European aggression.

More attention to Labor Day was urged, with the parade stressed as a means of rousing interest.

measure of economic recovery in Europe. Third, the complete recovery of our own industry and commerce (aside from agriculture) great stability of prices, high production, full employment, expanding foreign trade and prosperity throughout the business world.

The general eve of business activity was decidedly higher than in the so-called "very prosperous year of 1919," according to Hoover. Manufacturing production dropped slightly as compared to 1923, but mineral production rose materially.

"Notwithstanding far lower prices than in 1919, the value of sales of retail stores were lower indexed than in 1919 they may be explained as wholly due to the decline in price. Based on the calendar year of 1923 as 100, the general average of wholesale price dropped from 156 to 123 to 159 in 1924."

Discussing a slight slackening in production at the close of the fiscal year, Hoover said that there was a recovery in September which for manufacturing production stood 13 points higher than in June.

Fraser Returns From Columbus.

City Health Commissioner John Fraser returned home today from Columbus, where he attended a conference of health commissioners from all over the state.

Dr. M. C. Tarr, health commissioner, of Weaville and Dr. T. C. Chace, Salem, county health commissioners, also attended the state meeting, which occupied all of last week.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—With the exception of the oil stocks, which continued to display an irregular tone, prices of speculative stocks were swept forward in the early trading today in another unusually active session. Buying was concentrated on the Railroad, Motor and Equipment and a few of the high priced pool industries, but all departments of the market felt the stimulus of a heavy accumulation of week-end buying orders which found the market comparatively bare of offerings.

Continuation of easy money conditions and hardening of commodity prices were the most important outside factors affecting stock prices. The weekly compilation of living Fisher showed an advance from 150.3 to 153.8 in wholesale commodity prices. Thus confirming the higher quotations for basic commodities announced in the latter part of last week.

The Wash and Missouri Kansas and Texas stocks were the leaders in the forward movement in the Speculative Ralls, Wash preferred "A" advancing to a new high at 54 1/4. New York Central, Atchison and other of the dividend rails sold in good volume near the best prices of the year to date. Union Pacific was strong.

New forward movements were started in a number of Specialty stocks including Radio Corporation, up 2 1/2 points to a new high at 37 1/2. Asphalt, in a gain of 9 points from the low of last week; General Asphalt, in new high ground at 52; Gulf States Steel up 1/2 at 76 1/2; Mack Trucks up 2 1/2 at 111; May Department stores up 3 to 100 1/2; Industrial Alcohol up 1 1/2 at 86, following its five point rise of last week.

Oils were held back by heavy profit taking, resulting in fractional losses in Marland, Cosden, Sinclair, and other active stocks in this group. Sugar stocks reflected higher prices for raw and refined sugar; Equipment stocks took a spurt under the leadership of Baldwin gained nearly 2 points; Independent States Steel into fractionally higher prices. Davison Chemical was reactionary and lost two points at 39.

Outside markets were steady, with cotton prices practically unchanged; wheat and corn fractionally higher. Call money renewed at 2 per cent.

Two Pottery Workers Are Jailed After Auto Kills Man

Spencer Ridsen and John Lyan, Mt. Clemens pottery workers, are being held today by the police at Ecorse, Michigan, as the result of a manslaughter charge, which has been filed against the former following the death of Edward Dunn, Ecorse man, a few days ago.

Ridsen and Lyan, police claim, were enroute to East Liverpool in an automobile when Dunn was run down. Ridsen, following his arrest, admitted striking Dunn, but asserted that he placed the injured man in his car and was taking him home when Dunn expressed a desire to be left out of the car.

He was assisted to the ground they claim and was left sitting by the side of the road. His lifeless body was found the next morning. The owners of the car were traced through the license number taken at the time of the accident and when the pair returned to Mt. Clemens from East Liverpool, they were arrested and turned over to Ecorse officials.

James Brennan's Auto Accessory Shop Hit by Fire

Fire, which broke out in the automobile accessory shop operated by James Brennan, 418 Main street, Wellsville, shortly before noon today, scorched the interior of the two-story frame building, destroyed a small part of Brennan's equipment and partially consumed the roof.

Stock and equipment owned by Miss Sample, photographer, on the second floor, was damaged by water and fire. The flames originated, it was declared as Brennan was pouring alcohol from one container to another. The loss will reach approximately $500, covered by insurance.

down the expansive auditorium aisles to the evangelist.

Wives and husbands came together in the evening service and some of the latter, who had made the decision in the afternoon, accompanied the former to the front at night.

Bulwarked by many churchmen the newcomers were asked by Dr. Biedewolf "if they proposed to proceed and carry on in the Christian life?" The unhesitating and unflinching "I will" rang out in tones that reached the farthest recesses of the structure and for added emphasis were repeated.

"There can be no doubt of the sincerity of these folks, can there?" commented the evangelist as he called on Dr. J. O. Campbell to make the consecrating and accepting prayer. This was followed by those making the move praying audibly a petition suggested by Dr. Biedewolf.

Similar scenes were enacted during the men's mass meeting in the afternoon at the tabernacle. Deep conviction marked the service which was followed by many taking the initial step towards a new manner of living.

Sunday School Decision Day.

Decision day of a mutual nature for the co-operating Sunday Schools was had in the morning at the tabernacle. Schools, meeting at their various churches, held brief sessions and there, with banners aloft and in several instances led by orchestras and bands, marched to the Second and Washington streets (tabernacle). Acting as marshal of his school, Kelsey Bennett arranged a band of the First Methodist Protestant musicians and these led the school to the meeting. Later it divided honors with the Salvation Army band in contributing preliminary music.

East End Sunday Schools, Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal, the Second Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian made admirable showings as did the Methodist Episcopal School of Newell, all of which arrived on the scene early.

Emmanuel Presbyterian and Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal came in goodly number from the hilltops of the Northside, while the First U. P., the First Baptist and First Presbyterian made most commendable showings. Led by Joseph Blazer, Jr., who carried the banner and Superintendent Harold Allison, the latter being closest to the tabernacle, had the shortest distance to parade.

Numerous adults and young folks, inspired by their teachers, following Dr. Biedewolf's address, made the move that took them into the church from their respective schools in the morning.

Arriving early at the tabernacle Dr. Biedewolf was an interested spectator as the Biblical pupils wended their way to their allotted places in the building. He ordered the lights turned on at once which took away the sombreness of the murky day.

Banners, utilized, were left in the tabernacle, and will be used for additional platform decorations.

Women's Meeting.

Before a large gathering of women at the First U. P. church on Sunday afternoon Miss Wilma E. Davis, minister and accompanist of the evangelistic party, preached following an appealing musical program. Her subject was "Redeeming Love" which she exemplified by the story of the prophet Hosea and his wife, the latter of whom, after several years of marital felicity, yielded to the prevailing idleness of the day and then after a period of denunciation was won back by pleading.

The musical offerings preceding the sermon by Miss Davis included a psalm song, "Whiter Than Snow," by Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, a duet by Mrs. William Gerber and Mrs. Baker, "Oh, Love That Will Not Let Me Go," and a solo by Mill Wilda Warner, "Hope Thou in God."

Announcements were made of an all-day personal work program, the last of which was held on Thursday evening, when in joint parade from the Carnegie Library, mutual meeting place, and led by three bands employees from seventeen potteries and other East Liverpool, Chester and Newell plants will go to the tabernacle in a body.

Invocation was made on Sunday night by Rev. John Dimit, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church. Mr. McEwan sang, "We Shall Shine Like the Stars."

Preceding Dr. Biedewolf's sermon exquisite singing was contributed by the solo-voiced choir under Mr. McEwan's direction. Particularly appealing were the variations attending the popular hymn, "Rolled Away."

Dr. Biedewolf's subject on Sunday night was "How Will Thou Do With the Swelling of the Jordan?" in which he disclosed the only refuge from the ravages of sin as wild beasts along Palestine's noted river sought higher and higher caves from its overflow to be the atonement of Christ's sacrifice on the cross.

Mass Meeting of Men.

Speaking to a mass meeting of men in the afternoon on the subject, "Sold Out," which he founded on the words in Exodus, "And Ezean sold his birthright." Dr. Biedewolf declared it was no lie true that everybody "had his price" despite the fact that many did.

"There is John R. Mott," he said, "who is world secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and whom the late President Wilson wanted to make minister to China, refused an offer of $50,000 a year to head a banking institution while only getting a salary of $5,000 per annum."

"Mott when approached with the financial proffer tremblingly said: 'Gentlemen, I am sorry I have so lived in your presence as to cause you to think I would be tempted by an offer like this.' He is still on the job trying to save the souls of the young men of the country."

In turn the evangelist discussed impelling causes of soul sales: Power, political preferment, money and lust. All of these, he said, had caused unnumbered persons to go permanently astray.

Christianity, he pointed out, was the only panacea for this selling out process and it would "pardon the past, give help for the present and engender hope for the future."

In conclusion he declared the step

Under direction of Mr. McEwan 105 Men sitting in the choir seats, sang during the preliminary proceedings before the afternoon discourse.

A feature of the exercises also was a male quartet number, "Through Your Sins be as Scarlet," which was sung Carl and Emmett Gaston, G. A. Richards and John C. Usher all of the First United Presbyterian church.

Mr. McEwan sang "Meet Mother in the Siles." The invocation was made by Dr. F. A. Dean, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, and the prayer for those who accepted the invitation at the close of the service was offered by Adjutant J. H. Dean of the Salvation Army.

Miss Edwina Wilson acted as pianist at the men's meeting during the preliminary service.

With the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal, First Presbyterian, First Baptist, First and Second United Presbyterian, Newell Methodist Episcopal, First Methodist Protestant, Pennsylvania Avenue and Anderson Methodist Episcopal, Emmanuel Presbyterian and representatives from several other churches which later were augmented by those attending the regular congregational services, an inspiring meeting was held on Sunday morning.

Dr. Biedewolf Urges Decision.

Before the invitation was given when hundreds of young people and many adults made a decision for church alliance, Dr. Biedewolf spoke informally on the necessity for such a step.

Preceding his address, Dr. J. O. Campbell, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church, read the first psalm, Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church led in prayer and Mr. McEwan sang the final song composed by the late E. O. Excell, before his passing in Louisville, Ky., some time ago, "I will follow Thee." During the preliminary song service Mr. McEwan nad Mr. Heaton sang, "Jesus Will."

"One to every man and woman as to a nation comes the time to decide for their future," declared Dr. Biedewolf. "The Christian life only saves; it keeps and is worth while. One of the hymns approximates the situation: 'I gave My Life for Thee, What Hast Thou Done for Me?'"

The consecration prayer in the morning services following the receipt of many of the invitation given was made by Rev. John F. Dimit of the First Methodist Protestant church.

Giving his viewpoints and estimate of heaven, Dr. Biedewolf spoke to a good sized audience on Saturday. "Inasmuch as Jesus talked much of heaven it is well for us to know it occasionally," he said. "It will be a place for did not Christ say we would go to prepare a place for you. One can't go without reaching somewhere. So it must be that the mansions in it will be as those here only better."

The Apostle John, carried up to the third heaven averred that he saw "things that were not lawful to tell." In bulwarking this statement Dr. Biedewolf realistically told of the magnitude of the various planets, the smallness of the earth when related to them and the incomprehensible expanse of space. "John," he said, declared the streets of heaven are paved with gold, its walls of precious stones and every gate a pearl. I say a pearl recently worth $9,000. Think of what a gate would cost. But John's idea of

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs. Into a pint bottle put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CHRONIC COUGHS AND PERSISTENT COLDS LEAD TO SERIOUS LUNG TROUBLE. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

HIGH GRIDDERS LOSE AT TORONTO

Wellsville High gridders were handed a surprise package at Toronto Saturday afternoon, the Orange and Black eleven coming out second best in an encounter with the Jefferson county gridders. The count was 26 to 0.

The contest was comparatively rough, with the Toronto squad taking frequent penalties. Despite this fact, however, the down river contingent possessed remarkable driving power and on four occasions crossed the Wellsville goal line. The performance of D'Amato and Campbell, half-backs, Shea, end, and Pignatore, guard, featured the play of the leaders, while Kuntzler, Chaney and Hinkle starred for Toronto. The lineup: Wellsville.

De Wolf Hopper Will Appear Here In Comic Opera

De Wolf Hopper, the inimitable, and his comic opera company will be the double attraction coming to the Ceramic theatre Tuesday, Nov. 25. The opera that will be presented is "The Mikado" by many considered the best of the various operas on which Gilbert and Sullivan collaborated. Its humor is as infectious today as it was when first given to the public many years ago and with its melodies there are no doubt a greater number of music lovers than are thoroughly familiar with any other that have followed them. Where is the music nowadays that will compare with "The Moon and I," "A Is Happy, B Is Not," "Hearts Do Not Break" and a dozen others not to overlook "Let the Punishment Fit the Crime," "Till Willow," "I've Got A Little List," "Taken From the County Jail" and others of a light order. Of course Hopper will be seen as "Koko," as "The Mikado" would seem incomplete without him in the role of the Lord High Executioner, a role that is inseparable from the name of Hopper. The star will be supported by what has been proclaimed to be "the best singing organization heard in comic opera since the days of the Bostonians."

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs. Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—almost like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Four Musical Kings With Classy Revue At Strand Theatre

Offering a musical repertoire complete from the classic to the popular music of the day, the Four Musical Kings, one of the features of Arthur Hawk's offering, the Sunshine Revue, appearing at the Strand theater this week, capture the hearts of the music-loving public from the moment of their first appearance on the stage.

Led by Arthur Hawk, who is a mandolin and banjo player par excellence, the quartette offers a program of harmony different from the usual instrumental numbers featured in the production of today. Barney Kleeber, Claude Reed and Tom Collins complete the harmony four, whose playing and singing score the biggest hits in the revue. Tom Collins, whose comedy antics carry his audience into the realm of laughter during the entire production, carries his characterization into the work of the quartette and introduces additional punch into the music.

Aside from producing and staging the revue and leading the quartette, Arthur Hawk is also the composer of many of the musical scores used in the production. His Kiwanis March, written during last season's tour, has been played from coast to coast before the Kiwanis Clubs and has scored sensational hits everywhere.

In addition to the Musical Kings, the Sunshine Revue features Helen Kennedy, the dainty soubrette, Tom Collins, Billy Cullen, and the Sunshine Beauty chorus, with elaborate scenery and costume effects and a change of program.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1924.

Good Work, Police Department!

The police department of most communities is so often criticized, and often unjustly, that the public, unless attention is directed to the fact, is prone to forget the good work performed by the guardians of the law. Thus it is not amiss to refer to the round-up of suspects in the recent series of hold-ups and burglaries in the East Liverpool district.

Within 48 hours after the looting of a hardware store in Chester, W. Va., and the hold-up staged in the tollhouse of the East Liverpool-Chester bridge, East Liverpool police arrested three suspects, who not only confessed complicity in the two jobs, but solved the mystery of other robberies here within the last three weeks.

The prisoners' stories revealed the ransacking of a coal company office and barber shop and attempts to rob a drug store and two grocery stores, besides the breaking and entering of the Chester establishment and the tollhouse robbery. And it is not improbable, police believe, that the suspects may throw some light on at least two other jobs in the district.

Credit for the round-up goes to Chief of Police Hugh J. McDermott, Captain Mason C. Conley and Officer William Lister and Chief Brady Seever, of Chester, and a representative of a Steubenville detective agency, who co-operated with the local department. It was quick work that warrants the commendation of the public.

Gun Elevations

Japan, asked by the British and American governments three questions regarding naval changes costing $25,000,000, answers two, and dodges the third. She admits that she is changing her coal-burning vessels to oil burners and armoring her decks against aircraft, both of which were to be expected of an enterprising naval power. She refuses to say whether she is elevating her battleship guns to increase their range.

Ordinarily this refusal might be justified on the ground that it was an impertinent question. But as matters stand, it appears to be really some of this country's business, and Great Britain's. The United States recently gave up plans to elevate its big naval guns because of British objections. The British government argued that such action, making the battleships far more effective, would give the American navy an advantage not justified by the Washington arms limitation agreement.

This precedent would seem to apply to Japan in the present case. If that country is giving its naval guns a greater range, it may be, in effect, breaking the Washington agreement by making its navy more than 60 per cent as strong as the American or British navy.

If there would be no such result, the Japanese government might as well tell frankly what it is doing. And if it believes that gun elevations and ranges are matters for every power to determine for itself, and have nothing to do with the Washington pact, it should say so, and give the United States a chance to act on the same principle.

Still More Scot-Free Bonds

The voters in various states and cities on November 4 authorized about $600,000,000 more tax-free bonds. All of these will soon be thrown upon the market, and all will probably find ready buyers. The national increase in the volume of untaxed securities this calendar year is expected to reach $2,000,000,000, making the grand total outstanding somewhere near $15,000,000,000.

The public improvements to be paid for by the new issues, it may be assumed, are nearly all desirable; and if the localities concerned are willing to stand the expense, that is their own business. A regard for the future of the country, however, raises the inquiry as to when this kind of thing is going to end. Before many years there may be $50,000,000,000 or $100,000,000,000 of American capital invested in untaxable securities.

Every good economist recognizes this policy as unsound. If incomes are taxed, it is fairer and better to tax incomes from all sources, which was the apparent intent of the existing income tax law. Bonds issued at present cannot be affected, but there is a growing demand for congress to forbid new tax-exempt issues.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

CYRIL THE FIRST

Cyril, a Russian grand duke, who is pleased to call himself "His Majesty, Cyril the First, Emperor of Russia," has called a crown council of grand dukes and such left-overs to meet in Paris.

There they will be all right, with excellent restaurants close by. But, if the nervous Trotsky ever gets hold of Cyril the First, it will be the last of that particular Cyril.

Germany and Russia and France, you may safely say that they know at least one thing, which is that they don't need or want emperors.

SHE HUNTS LIONS

A rich young heiress of Philadelphia whose friends call her Peggy goes to Africa to hunt lions where Roosevelt hunted them, taking a moving picture photographer.

She will shoot the lions, while he "shoots" her with his camera.

The young lady has nothing against the lions. She simply wants to feel important and to be noticed, so she endures discomfort.

She might have done interesting hunting in the slums where mothers worry and children die, but moving pictures of sick babies and worrying mothers wouldn't interest friends or arouse admiration. It's hard for a rich young heiress to find occupation that's exciting.

A BIGGER DINOSAUR

They have found in Africa well-preserved bones of a dinosaur, twice as big as the biggest thus far known. The history of that dinosaur would show that the bigger he grew the nearer he was to extinction. That thought should occupy the minds of our financial dinosaurs. "Providence arranges it so that the trees shall not grow into the heavens." That's also true of dinosaurs and corporations.

It is predicted that the constitutional amendment permitting congress to regulate or forbid child labor will be defeated. Massachusetts at the last election voted against the proposal.

The opposition of Cardinal O'Connell, who is said to look upon the bill as threatening national interference with parochial schools, was probably most influential in deciding the result in Massachusetts.

A young man, 18 years old, set fire to seven barns on Henry Ford's estate last April. He was convicted, and ordinarily would have been sent to spend his early manhood in some prison university of crime.

Henry Ford appealed to the court and had the young man put on probation, guaranteeing that he, Ford, would send the young man that burned his barns to the Ford trades school.

More trade schools and more Fords might make jails less numerous.

WHO'S WHO

MRS. MARY T. NORTON.

The recent election, among other interesting results, sends to congress its fifth woman member. Mrs. Mary T. Norton, elected to the house of representatives from the Twelfth congressional district, is a native of New Jersey. She is also the first Democratic woman member of congress.

Mrs. Norton's unopposed nomination by the Democratic party was regarded as equivalent to election, as the Twelfth congressional district, New Jersey, coincides with Eleventh ward of Jersey City, a Democratic stronghold. She had the backing of Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, and the rest of the powerful Democratic organization in Hudson county. Mrs. Norton was a delegate to the Democratic national convention at Madison Square Garden, and, like the rest of the New Jersey delegation, cast her vote faithfully for Al Smith for the presidential nomination until New York's governor withdrew from the race.

Mrs. Norton is vice chairman of the New Jersey Democratic state committee. She was the first woman freholder in Hudson county, a position similar to that of county commissioner in New York, and is chairman of the county committee of the general hospital and the almshouse.

She is the wife of Robert F. Norton, Jersey City. Becoming interested in public affairs after the death of her only child, she volunteered more than 10 years ago for work in the Hudson county day nurseries. She has been head of the Queen's Daughters' day nursery in Hudson county for eight years. Her first political position came in 1920, when she was chosen vice chairman of the county Democratic organization. The next year she became vice chairman of the state committee.

As a member of the Hudson county board of freeholders Mrs. Norton has been specially interested in hospital construction, particularly in the building of a new maternity hospital where women of small means may obtain the best of treatment for a minimum charge.

Mrs. Norton believes in a gradual assumption of political right by women.

"We ought not to have equal rights immediately," she said during the campaign. "We must creep before we can walk."

She promised in her campaign appeals to help get a rise in pay for postal employees as her first concern on taking her seat in congress.

DINNER STORIES

Little Grace went into the country for an outing this summer. She and her little brother had been out of sight of their nurse for 10 or 15 minutes, when Grace came running to her.

"Nurse," she asked, eagerly, "blackberries don't have legs, do they?"

"Of course not, dear."

Grace replied, after a pause, "Then Oswald's eaten a caterpillar."

An American woman went to Scotland to visit some friends. When she returned one of her friends accompanied her.

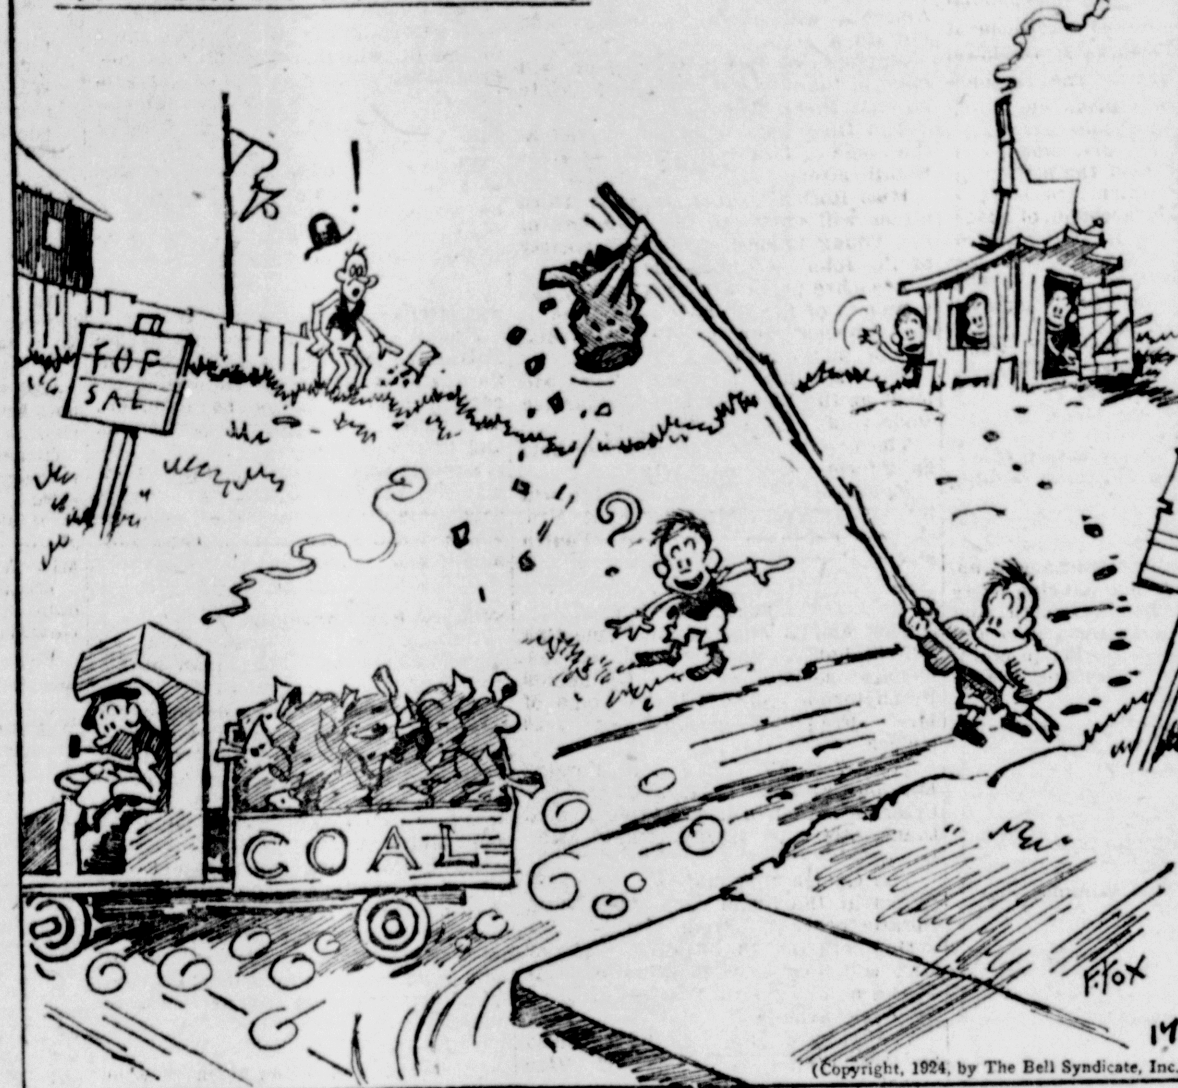

As they neared New York the American woman said: "In a little while you shall see Sandy Hook."

"Oh!" said her Scottish friend. "Do not tell me when, because I am sure I would know a Scotsman anywhere."

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ALICE LANGELEIR.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The old theater of the Porte St. Martin, which witnessed the glory and death of the famous Coquelin, is now giving its spectators a remarkable play by Henry Kistemackers. "L'Amour" (love) — is an interesting drama which turns about a man of 50 years, dealing with the psychological effect on a man who suddenly perceives he has spoiled his life by renouncing his art for success and his love for a so-called "successful" marriage. He considers the emptiness of the world, tries to grasp love before it is too late and fails.

Pierre Navarre, a famous painter who has passed his fiftieth milestone, is blessed with talent, friends and a snobbish wife, Françoise, who is jealous and artificial. It is she who has furnished the money which accounts for the success of Pierre. The household, like many other Parisian ones, gets along as best it can.

In a quiet corner of Brittany, where they spend their holidays, Pierre meets Marie Kerlor, a simple, country girl of 20 years, who is also unhappy with a cruel stepfather. She passionately admires the painter and she is like a breath of fresh air to the tormented man. One day Marie comes trembling to Pierre's home relating a bad scene with the old man. It is a poignant moment for Pierre has just been disputing with his wife. The lovers run away to Paris and we next find them in a little atelier. The painter has become poor through the work of Françoise, but is happy in his love, but, alas, not for long.

Marie, the simple country girl, begins to be weary of her ease, even though it be a pleasant one, and pines for the free country life of Brittany. Then, she is only 20. Pierre has made himself believe she loved him, but he is soon to discover that the love is only affection. When a telegram comes concerning the death of her stepfather she shows such happiness over the idea of a visit to her mother that Pierre is certain his happiness is going to disappear.

He allows her to leave him knowing full well she will not return. In this moment his wife comes back to urge him to return to her. He refuses, continuing only to think of Marie. Six months pass and she does not return. He goes back to Brittany and finds she has forgotten her first adventure, has married a village fellow and is happy. Everything has finished for Pierre. It is the last love of a man. Age and youth meet for a brief space, smile together and separate, each one taking his own road — Marie, singing an Italian melody; Pierre with halting steps and back bent. Old age has come and he knows it.

A good fairy waved her wand over the house of a young French working girl and crowned Marcelle Guillon the queen of the Parisian seamstress. It is no mean honor to be chosen as the best seamstress of the French workrooms and the girls who competed for the title and the prizes knew this before ever taking a stitch in the models they were going to expose. The leading designers of the capital agreed, not long ago, to pay 40,000 francs a year to the worker producing the most beautiful dress of her own design and workmanship.

Madeleine Guillon, the 25-year-old daughter of a Paris chauffeur, set out for the prize, for she wants to get married to a worthy young man now getting a very modest salary. She is a "premiere Elyse" in one of the best houses of the Champs Elysees, where she has been working since the age of 13. Her salary now is about seven or eight dollars a week.

After long hours in the work room, Madeleine sewed on her own creation, a simple but charming black chemise with an unusual drape which goes down the left side and over the left shoulder, making a little train in the back. This is the only trimming on the dress. It is this line which makes its beauty. Madeleine did not dream it would bring her the cherished treasure, but the jury, almost embarrassed by the lovely creations presented at the Hotel de Ville, finally decided that hers was the best of all.

Afterward to an inn and met Melville Davison Post, the taylor writer, and found him agreeable, but Lord, how much slighter in stature than I imagined. And he talked of cattle raising and how also he is raising polo ponies at his farm at Lost Creek, W. Va.

Walked through the town in the brave sunshine and put in for awhile to see Ray Rohn, the limner, and he tells me of the new baby girl at his Philadelphia home and I fashioned a telegram to his wife.

One of the best known men in New York is "Big Bill" Egan, station master at the Pennsylvania station. He has been with the road for more than 40 years and has perhaps the most penetrating, booming voice in America. For years and years he has been watching with observing and philosophic eye the ever flowing stream of humanity that passes through the gates of railway stations. He has saved many from despair who found themselves broke and far from home. He says he has never lost a penny loaning money to those who actually needed it. "Big Bill" has been a friend of presidents and hundreds of other prominent men.

Another figure about New York railroad terminals is a red cap at the Grand Central who is known as Black Eli. He is a grinning Ethiopian who bubbles good nature. He makes it a rule to carry baggage for elderly ladies free. He has been doing it for years. His reason is sound and wholesome. "Once," he said, "my old black mammy came to New York and lost her purse. A white man took care of her until I could come on from the south. I am just trying to do as I was done by."

And where will one find more romance than about the great railroad terminals? Hours may be spent there in pleasant retrospection. Humanity is keyed to a high pitch. The thrill of travel is in the blood. One sees young married folks starting on their honeymoon journeys. Weeping men and women called home by tragedy. Men off on mighty missions. Immigrants starting for wheat fields with worldly possessions in bandanna handkerchiefs. State troopers off for the kerosene circuits. New arrivals who have had their first glimpse of the metropolis.

The brisk young men who so nonchalantly answer the thousand and one questions a day at the depot information bureaus are almost invariably boys from small towns. Yet they seem more like New Yorkers than any class I know. A poll during a full revealed that eight of them came from cities of less than 5,000 population. Until they came to New York six had never been beyond the confines of their own country.

Charlie Lawlor, who is now blind and more than 70 years old, wrote the song that makes all New York sing—"The Sidewalks of New York." He thought of it one night when coming home from a breakfast dinner and the next day set it to music. Despite the fact that it is the one song sure to inspire a New York crowd, Lawlor never realized more than $300 profits from it. FUR FARMING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—A new division of fur resources was established in the department of agriculture recently. This means that the government is going to take a special interest in controlling the country's fur supply.

Some of the valuable fur bearing animals of the United States have been almost entirely killed off or driven far back into the wilderness as civilization turned swamps and forests into farms and towns. Yet the fur industry is growing, because more people than ever before are wearing furs. Fur has become an everyday staple commodity, in demand not only for warmth but for trimming and decorative purposes.

More extensive use of fur has been made possible in the face of a dwindling natural supply, by the changes in the kind of furs worn. Once the market was most keenly interested in rare and precious pelts. A trapper would hunt for an entire winter in the wilderness country and think the time well spent if he came back with a single silver fox. If it was a fine pelt, his catch would bring from one to five thousand dollars. If he could get a well matched pair of silver foxes he was assured of around three thousand. This sort of adventurous hunting for rare skins still goes on, but the fur market does the profitable bulk of its business in muskrat, skunk, the less valuable foxes, raccoon, squirrel and other moderately priced and plentiful furs.

These small native fur bears represent a great source of national wealth. Furs trapped and produced on farms in a single state like New York are valued at several million dollars a year.

The difficulty is that most of the states are not protecting their fur resources so as to get the most out of them in the long run. In many states laws do not protect certain fur bearers at all. The muskrat, for instance, which is the most valuable fur producer in the United States, is not protected in 11 states. Most of the state trapping laws are defective in that they do not protect the animals over a sufficient period of the year. And in some cases the laws are not rigidly enforced.

There are no general statistics showing how rapidly the fur bearers are being killed off. There are no figures showing exactly how many animals are taken in the breeding season or in warm weather when their fur is poor in quality—though the government's estimate is that from 45 to 55 per cent of the pelts put on the raw fur market are taken when the fur is almost valueless.

Fur experts in the department of agriculture have for the past 12 years been experimenting with fur problems and urging protective legislation. The new division is pushing the work ahead. It is trying to demonstrate the advantages of limiting the fur hunting season to a very few months of winter and very early spring, when hunting is really profitable. Short seasons for most of the fur animals are economical in every way, as the fur industry itself realizes.

FUR BEARERS ARE ASSETS

Every one realizes that farmers should be permitted to destroy troublesome predatory animals, and that when a species becomes too numerous the restrictions on killing should be lessened. Mostly however the need is for greater protection for these animals. Many of the small fur animals have reputations for destroying crops and doing other damage, whereas they are really economic assets, because they prey on pests considerably more destructive than themselves.

When a valuable fur bearer becomes rare in a section the fur division advocates that trapping be entirely prohibited for several years so that the species may reestablish itself.

Perhaps the most interesting work done by the division is in connection with the breeding of fur animals. For some years the government experts have been experimenting with fur farming methods, but they say that comparatively little is yet known regarding the habits and the handling of fur bearers in captivity.

The breeding of foxes is very well understood, and of all the animals raised for fur the fox has so far most generously repaid the breeders. Almost 60 years ago Canadians had the idea of breeding silver foxes. The silver fox, which was then so much sought and so valuable, was a color phase of the red fox, a black animal with silver hairs intermixed and with a white tip to the tail. About 1887 successful results were reported. Some breeders succeeded in producing silver foxes by mating red with silver. Other men started with a pair of silver foxes. The main trouble experienced by the pioneers in the business was that the habits of the wild foxes were unknown. In many cases fine valuable young silver pups were ruthlessly killed by old foxes, through the ignorance of the men who handled them.

Once the breeding problems were solved, fur farming became a wildly speculative business. Breeding stock sold as high as $34,000 a pair, and farmers were more interested in raising foxes to sell to other breeders than in the business of supplying the fur market with pelts.

FOX FARMING STABILIZED

Gradually fox farming became stable, and now it is being carried on profitably by more than 50 individuals in the United States. The silver fox is the most popular with the farmers because it brings a higher price than the commoner red and cross foxes. But the day of extravagant prices for silver pelts is over. They are now rated at hundreds, rather than thousands, of dollars in the market.

The government has specialized in fox farming at its experimental farm, and it has developed practical methods of ranch planning, feeding, sanitation, treatment of diseases and general management of which are described in government publications.

Other animals have been experimented with, less extensively. Minks, which were probably the first wild fur bearing animals to be commercially farmed in this country, and also skunks, martens, fishers, muskrats and raccoons have been bred by the government with varying degrees of practical success.

In the case of some of these small animals, such as the muskrat, skunk and raccoon it is quite possible to raise stock in close captivity, but the market conditions are such that raising them in pens does not pay very well.

Fur farming will probably attract an increasing number of specialist farmers as government experts and other investigators learn more about practical methods in this new business. It is a more expensive method of producing fur than trapping, and so it will probably never replace trapping entirely, not, at any rate, if the laws protect their natural supply of fur bearers.

F. G. Ashbrook, head of the government fur division, makes the point that the government might well adopt the policy of restocking depleted lands with suitable fur bearers.

EAST LIVERPOOL-AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1924.

Good Work, Police Department!

The police department of most communities is so often criticized, and often unjustly, that the public, unless attention is directed to the fact, is prone to forget the good work performed by the guardians of the law. Thus it is not amiss to refer to the round-up of suspects in the recent series of hold-ups and burglaries in the East Liverpool district.

Within 48 hours after the looting of a hardware store in Chester, W. Va., and the hold-up staged in the tollhouse of the East Liverpool-Chester bridge, East Liverpool police arrested three suspects, who not only confessed complicity in the two jobs, but solved the mystery of other robberies here within the last three weeks.

The prisoners' stories revealed the ransacking of a coal company office and barber shop and attempts to rob a drug store and two grocery stores, besides the breaking and entering of the Chester establishment and the tollhouse robbery. And it is not improbable, police believe, that the suspects may throw some light on at least two other jobs in the district.

Credit for the round-up goes to Chief of Police Hugh J. McDermott, Captain Mason C. Conley and Officer William Lister and Chief Brady Seavers, of Chester, and a representative of a Steubenville detective agency, who co-operated with the local department. It was quick work that warrants the commendation of the public.

Gun Elevations

Japan, asked by the British and American governments three questions regarding naval changes costing $25,000,000, answers two, and dodges the third. She admits that she is changing her coal-burning vessels to oil burners and arming her decks against aircraft, both of which were to be expected of an enterprising naval power. She refuses to say whether she is elevating her battleship guns to increase their range.

Ordinarily this refusal might be justified on the ground that it was an impertinent question. But as matters stand, it appears to be really some of this country's business, and Great Britain's. The United States recently gave up plans to elevate its big naval guns because of British objections. The British government argued that such action, making the battleships far more effective, would give the American navy an advantage not justified by the Washington arms limitation agreement.

This precedent would seem to apply to Japan in the present case. If that country is giving its naval guns a greater range, it may be, in effect, breaking the Washington agreement by making its navy more than 60 per cent as strong as the American or British navy.

If there would be no such result, the Japanese government might as well tell frankly what it is doing. And if it believes that gun elevations and ranges are matters for every power to determine for itself, and have nothing to do with the Washington pact, it should say so, and give the United States a chance to act on the same principle.

Still More Scot-Free Bonds

The voters in various states and cities on November 4 authorized about $690,000,000 more tax-free bonds. All of these will soon be thrown upon the market, and all will probably find ready buyers. The national increase in the volume of untaxed securities this calendar year is expected to reach $2,000,000,000, making the grand total outstanding somewhere near $15,000,000,000.

The public improvements to be paid for by the new issues, it may be assumed, are nearly all desirable; and if the localities concerned are willing to stand the expense, that is their own business. A regard for the future of the country, however, raises the inquiry as to when this kind of thing is going to end. Before many years there may be $50,000,000,000 or $100,000,000,000 of American capital invested in untaxable securities.

Every good economist recognizes this policy as unsound. If incomes are taxed, it is fairer and better to tax incomes from all sources, which was the apparent intent of the existing income tax law. Bonds issued at present cannot be affected, but there is a growing demand for congress to forbid new tax-exempt issues.

CYRIL THE FIRST

Cyril, a Russian grand duke, who is pleased to call himself "His Majesty, Cyril the First, Emperor of Russia," has called a crown council of grand dukes and such left-overs to meet in Paris.

There they will be all right, with excellent restaurants close by. But, if the nervous Trotsky ever gets hold of Cyril the First, it will be the last of that particular Cyril.

Germany and Russia and France, you may safely say that they know at least one thing, which is that they don't need or want emperors.

SHE HUNTS LIONS

A rich young heiress of Philadelphia whose friends call her Peggy goes to Africa to hunt lions where Roosevelt hunted them, taking a moving picture photographer.

She will hunt the lions, while he "shoots" her with his camera. The young lady has nothing against the lions. She simply wants to feel important and to be noticed, so she endures discomfort.

She might have done interesting hunting in the slums where mothers worry and children die, but moving pictures of sick babies and worrying mothers wouldn't interest friends or arouse admiration. It's hard for a rich young heiress to find occupation that's exciting.

A BIGGER DINOSAUR

They have found in Africa well-preserved bones of a dinosaur, twice as big as the biggest thus far known. The history of that dinosaur would show that the bigger he grew the nearer he was to extinction. That thought should occupy the minds of our financial dinosaurs. "Providence arranges it so that the trees shall not grow into the heavens." That's also true of dinosaurs and corporations.

It is predicted that the constitutional amendment permitting congress to regulate or forbid child labor will be defeated. Massachusetts at the last election voted against the proposal.

The opposition of Cardinal O'Connell, who is said to look upon the bill as threatening national interference, with parochial schools, was probably most influential in deciding the result in Massachusetts.

A young man, 18 years old, set fire to seven barns on Henry Ford's estate last April. He was convicted, and ordinarily would have been sent to spend his early manhood in some prison university of crime.

Henry Ford appealed to the court and had the young man put on probation, guaranteeing that he, Ford, would send the young man that burned his barns to the Ford trades school.

More trade schools and more Fords might make jails less numerous.

A scientist in the British museum, reading ancient papyri, finds one of the third century, containing 30 verses of the twenty-sixth chapter of Matthew. Thus we know that three centuries after the birth of Christ men were warned that "they that take the sword shall perish by the sword." Men, nevertheless, went on taking the sword and perishing by the sword through all the centuries up to now. This discovery will be useful because it will cause many to read over again St. Matthew's description of the last supper.

There are signs of more war in the distressed Balkans. Montenegro doesn't want to be included in the new southern Slav kingdom. And, there are religious complications.

WHO'S WHO

MRS. MARY T. NORTON.

The recent election, among other interesting results, sends to congress its fifth woman member and its first fair congresswoman from the east. She is Mrs. Mary T. Norton, elected to the house of representatives from the Twelfth congressional district in New Jersey. She is also the first Democratic woman member of congress.

Mrs. Norton's unopposed nomination by the Democratic party was regarded as equivalent to election, as the Twelfth congressional district, New Jersey, coincides with Eleventh ward of Jersey City, a Democratic stronghold. She had the backing of Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, and the rest of the powerful Democratic organization in Hudson county. Mrs. Norton was a delegate to the Democratic national convention at Madison Square Garden and, like the rest of the New Jersey delegation, cast her vote faithfully for Al Smith for the presidential nomination until New York's governor withdrew from the race.

Mrs. Norton is vice chairman of the New Jersey Democratic state committee. She was the first woman freeholder in Hudson county, a position similar to that of county commissioner in New York, and is chairman of the county committee of the general hospital and the almshouse.

She is the wife of Robert F. Norton, Jersey City. Becoming interested in public affairs after the death of her only child, she volunteered more than 10 years ago for work in the Hudson county day nurseries. She has been head of the Queen's Daughters' day nursery in Hudson county for eight years. Her first political position came in 1920, when she was chosen vice chairman of the county Democratic organization. The next year she became vice chairman of the state committee.

As a member of the Hudson county board of freeholders Mrs. Norton has been especially interested in hospital construction, particularly in the building of a new maternity hospital where women of small means may obtain the best of treatment for a minimum charge.

Mrs. Norton believes in a gradual assumption of political right by women.

"We ought not to have equal rights immediately," she said during the campaign. "We must creep before we can walk."

She promised in her campaign appeals to help get a rise in pay for postal employees as her first concern on taking her seat in congress.

DINNER STORIES

Little Grace went into the country for an outing this summer. She and her little brother had been out of sight of their nurse for 10 or 15 minutes, when Grace came running to her.

"Nurse," she asked, eagerly, "blackberries don't have legs, do they?"

"Of course not, dear."

Grace replied, after a pause, "Then Oswald's eaten a caterpillar."

An American woman went to Scotland to visit some friends. When she returned one of her friends accompanied her.

As they neared New York the American woman said: "In a little while we shall see Sandy Hook."

"Oh!" said her Scottish friend. "Do not tell me when, because I am sure I would know a Scotsman anywhere."

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ALICE LANGLEIER.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The old theater of the Porte St. Martin, which witnessed the glory and death of the famous Coquelin, is now giving its spectators a remarkable play by Henry Kistemacker.

"L'Amour" (Love) — an interesting drama which turns about a man of 50 years, dealing with the psychological effect on a man who suddenly perceives he has spoiled his life by renouncing his art for success and his love for a so-called "successful" marriage. He considers the emptiness of the world, tries to grasp love before it is too late and fails.

Pierre Navarre, a famous painter who has passed his fiftieth milestone, is blessed with talent, friends and a snobbish wife, Françoise, who is jealous and artificial. It is she who has furnished the money which became the success of Pierre. The household, like many other Parisian ones, gets along as best it can.

In a quiet corner of Brittany, where they spend their holidays, Pierre meets Marie Kerlor, a simple, country girl of 20 years, who is also unhappy with a cruel stepfather. She passionately admires the painter and she is like a breath of fresh air to the tormented man. One day Marie comes trembling to Pierre's home relating a bad scene with the old man. It is a poignant moment, for Pierre has just been disputing with his wife. The lovers run away to Paris and we next find them in a little atelier. The painter has become poor through the work of Françoise, but is happy in his love, but, alas, not for long.

Marie, the simple country girl, begins to be weary of her cage, even though it be a pleasant one, and pines for the free country life of Brittany. Then, she is only 20. Pierre has made himself believe she loved him, but he is soon to discover that the love is only affection. When a telegram comes concerning the death of her stepfather she shows such happiness over the idea of a visit to her mother that Pierre is certain his happiness is going to disappear.

He allows her to leave him knowing full well she will not return. In this moment his wife comes back to urge him to return to her. He refuses, continuing only to think of Marie. Yet the fur industry is growing, because more people than ever before are wearing furs. Fur has become an everyday staple commodity, in demand not only for warmth but for trimming and decorative purposes.

More extensive use of fur has been made possible in the face of a dwindling natural supply, by the changes in the kind of furs worn. Once the market was most keenly interested in rare and precious pelts. A trapper would hunt for an entire winter in the wilderness country and think the time well spent if he came back with a single silver fox. If it was a fine pelt, his catch would bring from one to five thousand dollars. If he could get a well matched pair of silver foxes he was assured of around ten thousand. This sort of adventurous hunting for rare skins still goes on, but the fur market does the profitable bulk of its business in muskrat, skunk, the less valuable foxes, raccoon, squirrel and other moderately priced and plentiful furs.

These small native fur bearers represent a great source of national wealth. Furs trapped and produced on farms in a single state like New York are valued at several million dollars a year.

The difficulty is that most of the states are not protecting their fur resources so as to get the most out of them in the long run. In many states law does not protect certain fur bearers at all. The muskrat, for instance, which is the most valuable fur producer in the United States, is not protected in 11 states. Most of the state trapping laws are defective in that they do not protect the animals over a sufficient period of the year. And in some cases the laws are not rigidly enforced.

There are no general statistics showing how rapidly the fur bearers are being killed off. There are no figures showing exactly how many animals are taken in the breeding season or in warm weather when their fur is poor in quality—though the government's estimate is that from 45 to 55 per cent of the pelts put on the raw fur market are taken when the fur is almost valueless.

Fur experts in the department of agriculture have for the past 12 years been experimenting with fur problems and urging protective legislation. The new division is pushing the work ahead. It is trying to demonstrate the advantages of limiting the fur hunting season to a very few months of winter and very early spring, when hunting is really profitable. Short seasons for most of the fur animals are economical in every way, as the fur industry itself realizes.

FUR BEARERS ARE ASSETS

Every one realizes that farmers should be permitted to destroy troublesome predatory animals, and that when a species becomes too numerous the restrictions on killing should be lessened. Mostly however the need is for greater protection for these animals. Many of the small fur animals have reputations for destroying crops and doing other damage, whereas they are really economic assets, because they prey on pests considerably more destructive than themselves.

When a valuable fur bearer becomes rare in a section the fur division advocates that trapping be entirely prohibited several years so that the species may re-establish itself.

Perhaps the most interesting work done by the division is in connection with the breeding of fur animals. For some years the government experts have been experimenting with fur farming methods but they say that comparatively little is yet known regarding the habits and the handling of fur bearers in captivity.

The breeding of foxes is very well understood, and of all the animals raised for fur the fox has so far most generally repaid the breeders. Almost 60 years ago Canadians had the idea of breeding silver foxes. The silver fox, which was then so much sought and so valuable, was a color phase of the red fox, a black animal with silver hair intermixed and with a white tip to the tail. About 1887 successful results were reported. Some breeders succeeded in producing silver foxes by mating red with silver. Other men started with a pair of silver foxes. Ten main trouble experienced by the pioneers in the business was that the habits of the wild foxes were unknown. In many cases fine valuable young silver pups were ruthlessly killed by old foxes, through the ignorance of the men who handled them.

Once the breeding problems were solved, for fur farming became a widely speculative business. Breeding stock as high as $34,000 a pair, and farmers were more interested in raising foxes to sell to other breeders than in the business of supplying the fur market with pelts.

FOX FARMING STABILIZED

Gradually fox farming became stable, and now it is being carried on profitably by more than 500 individuals in the United States. The silver fox is the most popular with the fur men because it brings a higher price than the commoner red and cross foxes. But the day of extravagant prices for silver pelts is over. They are now rated at hundreds, rather than thousands, of dollars in the market.

The government has specialized in fox farming at its experimental farm, and it has developed practical methods of ranch planning, feeding, sanitation, treatment of diseases and general management of which are described in government publications.

Other animals have been experimented with, less extensively. Minks, which were probably the first wild fur bearing animals to be commercially farmed in this country, and also skunks, martens, fishers, muskrats and raccoons have been bred by the government with varying degrees of practical success.

In the case of some of these small animals, such as the muskrat, skunk and raccoon it is quite possible to raise stock in close captivity, but the market conditions are such that raising them in pens does not pay very well.

Fur farming will probably attract an increasing number of specialist farmers as government experts and other investigators learn more about practical methods in this new business. There is a more expensive method of producing fur than trapping, and so it will probably never replace trapping entirely, not at any rate, if the government protect their natural supply of fur bearers.

F. G. Ashbrook, head of the government fur division, makes the point that the government might well adopt the policy of restocking depleted lands with suitable fur bearers.

A WONDER TONIC SAYS THIS MAN

Ka-di-ok Helps Salesman Enjoy Life as He Hadn't Been Able to For Years Past.

Mr. Fred E. Luscomb

Nobody can appreciate to what an extent ambition, ability and success are dependent upon physical fitness until he has suddenly found relief after suffering the misery of poor health. Mr. Fred E. Luscomb, employed as a salesman for the D. J. Davis company, Mansfield, Ohio, where he resides at Hotel Brunswick, tells in the following statement his gratifying experience with the famous health-aid, Ka-di-ok.

"The work of a salesman demands a goodly amount of pep and energy and my particular work also necessitates a lot of walking from house to house. Before taking Ka-di-ok I was run down in a good many ways and there were times when I just had to force myself to carry on. I felt so miserable and depressed at times that I thought I never would be able to feel right again."

"I started taking Ka-di-ok and from the first noticed a change for the best. Today I feel like a new man. Every organ of my body is as perfect as in the days of my youth, and I am enjoying life as I have not for years. Friends tell me I look younger and I sure do feel so. I owe it all to Ka-di-ok. It is indeed a wonder tonic and I intend to keep on taking it for all days to come."

Many people who have given up hope of ever feeling right again have found a new interest in life almost instantly through the use of Ka-di-ok. It is especially recommended for constipation, loss of appetite, nervousness, insomnia, indigestion, auto-intoxication, rheumatism, loss of weight, gas or bloating after meals, weakness, poor blood and general debility. Get a bottle of Ka-di-ok at once if you suffer from any of these ailments. Ka-di-ok can be obtained in East Liverpool at the Mathews' Cut Rate Medicine Store, 129 West 6th street. —Adv.

A WONDER TONIC SAYS THIS MAN
Ka-di-ok Helps Salesman Enjoy Life as He Hadn't Been Able to For Years Past.

Mr. Fred E. Luscomb
Nobody can appreciate to what an extent ambition, ability and success are dependent upon physical fitness until he has suddenly found relief after suffering the misery of poor health. Mr. Fred E. Luscomb, employed as a salesman for the D. J. Davis company, Mansfield, Ohio, where he resides at Hotel Brunswick, tells in the following statement his gratifying experience with the famous health-aid, Ka-di-ok.

"The work of a salesman demands a goodly amount of pep and energy and my particular work also necessitates a lot of walking from house to house. Before taking Ka-di-ok I was run down in a good many ways and there were times when I just had to force myself to carry on. I felt so miserable and depressed at times that I thought I never would be able to feel right again."

"I started taking Ka-di-ok and from the first noticed a change for the best. Today I feel like a new man. Every organ of my body is as perfect as the day of my youth, and I am enjoying life as I have not for years. Friends tell me I look younger and I sure do feel so. I owe it all to Ka-di-ok. It is indeed a wonder tonic and I intend to keep on taking it for all days to come."

Many people who have given up hope of ever feeling right again have found a new interest in life almost instantly through the use of Ka-di-ok. It is especially recommended for constipation, loss of appetite, nervousness, insomnia, indigestion, auto-intoxication, rheumatism, loss of weight, gas or bloating after meals, weakness, poor blood and general debility. Get a bottle of Ka-di-ok at once if you suffer from any of these ailments.

Ka-di-ok can be obtained in East Liverpool at the Mathews' Cut Rate Medicine Store, 129 West 6th street. —Adv.

YOUR HEALTH

What to Do to Banish Stiff Neck or Other Pain

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It is not pleasant to wake up in the morning with a painful twist in your neck. On trying to turn your head it feels as if a stiletto had been driven into your muscles.

Sometimes the pain is in one arm, in the leg, or in the small of the back. It may have been in one or two fingers or the whole hand.

Lameness and stiffness of special muscles is due to over-use or wrong use. Unaccustomed demands result in painful protest.

Bad position at the desk, or long-continued and cramped attitude in any undertaking will result in stiffness of certain muscles.

If you work late at night, making up your income tax return, or trying to balance a badly-kept set of books, you are sure to suffer for it.

If you drive a car you may find the muscles of your arm lame for weeks at a time. You may have a stiff neck.

These symptoms are the result of excessive or improper muscular effort.

Most soreness and stiffness of muscles can be easily explained. When once your attention is called to it and you seriously seek the cause it will be speedily found. To avoid muscle strain, ease and freedom of movement must be studied. An erect figure, proper posture at every activity and grace in movement should be the pride of every person.

Consider the persons who carry burdens on their heads. In my city I sometimes see women carrying baskets, by, dies or loads of wood, carefully poised on the top of the head. Notice their upright and graceful bodies, their splendidly-set shoulders, their full chests, their firmly-placed feet.

Contrast these agile and perfect figures with the slouching, shuffling, sloppy carriage of many young men and women. Brace up their back the shoulders, lift the chin, draw in the stomach. Carry yourself proudly and act as if you felt the joy of living.

Sometimes, and not uncommonly, indeed, stiffness of the neck here, there, wandering, elusive and rather indefinite, may have other causes than bad position. Stiff neck kink in the side of the back or disturbance anywhere in the muscular system may come from causes other than excessive muscular demands.

Bad teeth, bad tonsils, infected sinuses or infection in some other focus, may be responsible for much misery.

Probably the most important factor beside bad posture or strain is constipation. Absorption from long-retained waste material may show itself by muscular or nerve disturbance. The poison developing from the fermentation of fecal material may cause serious attacks of stiff neck and other pains.

Modern life is filled with many a menace to health. Lack of exercise, hasty meals, overeating, long hours, deprivation of sleep and all the other things that detract from muscular vigor, have their effects upon the external body and the internal organs.

A return to normal living, normal exercise, normal eating, normal sleeping and normal attention to prevent the accumulation of waste, relieving strain in some other organ, repeated muscular and nerve gains.

WEIRTON DOWNS LOCAL GRIDDERS

Steel City Team Wins Hard Fought Game, Score 7-0.

Chester high team journeyed to Weirton Saturday and was defeated by the scholastic eleven of that place in a hard fought gridiron contest, score 7 to 0. The clash was witnessed by a large crowd.

The game was one of the hardest battles of the season and there was little to choose between the squads. Both aggregations put up a fine exhibition of football.

The Steel City eleven scored the lone touchdown when State, who played a stellar game for the winners, broke through the locals line and crossed the goal line. Goal was kicked by Reeder.

Chester made a gallant effort for victory, but the home team offered a stonewall defense and the locals were unable to place the oval over the goal line.

Chester played a strong defensive game with Shaw's work standing out prominently. Weirton's victory places them in line for the championship of Hancock county.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the REAL cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound, mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without gripping, cramps or pain. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

STATEMENT MADE ON CIDER RULING

Warning against "misapprehension of the law as construed in this state," by reason of the acquittal of Congressman J. P. Hill at Baltimore, was issued by J. H. Gadd, federal prohibition commissioner of West Virginia, in a statement Friday of the policy to be pursued by his agents.

Reminding the public that the decision of the court in Maryland was not binding in this state, at least, pending possible final determination of the question by the supreme court of the United States, Mr. Gadd set forth his belief that the law forbids manufacture of beverages with one-half of one per cent or more alcoholic content, and declared his staff would continue in accordance with that belief.

The statement follows:

"The holding of the United States district court and the acquittal by a jury of Representative John Philip Hill in Baltimore today may give rise to a misapprehension of the law as construed in this state, and I feel it my duty to warn the public that this case is of no effect or force in West Virginia, and as I understand the Volstead act, no person has a right to manufacture wine or cider containing one-half of one per cent or more of alcohol by volume.

"No permit is necessary for the manufacture of cider in this state for home use, but such cider must be non-intoxicating, and in view of the definition of the word 'intoxicating liquor' above referred to, non-intoxicating cider must contain less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume. That is the interpretation in this state so far as I know and the holding of my department."

—to have a good APPETITE!

"Yes! thank you."

A GOOD appetite means a cheerful disposition.

You may have a good appetite if the blood that goes constantly to your vital organs is pure. S.S.S. purifies the blood—a good appetite follows and you will have a clear complexion and will be strong, cheerful and healthy.

Don't go on feeling up one day and down the next—hardly sick but never well—losing "pep," punch and ambition. Hearty eaters are the red-blooded men and women. Enjoy your food! Get back your strength and energy! Reclaim yourself before it is too late! People in a physically run-down condition are an easy prey to disease.

S.S.S. is what is needed. Your blood needs purifying. Your blood-cells supply the energy which keeps your body well and fit. WEIRTON DOWNS LOCAL GRIDDERS

Steel City Team Wins Hard Fought Game, Score 7-0.

Chester high team journeyed to Weirton Saturday and was defeated by the scholastic eleven of that place in a hard fought gridiron contest, score 7 to 0. The clash was witnessed by a large crowd.

The game was one of the hardest battles of the season and there was little to choose between the squads. Both aggregations put up a fine exhibition of football.

The Steel City eleven scored the lone touchdown when State, who played a stellar game for the winners, broke through the locals line and crossed the goal line. Goal was kicked by Reeder.

Chester made a gallant effort for victory, but the home team offered a stonewall defense and the locals were unable to place the oval over the goal line.

Chester played a strong defensive game with Shaw's work standing out prominently. Weirton's victory places them in line for the championship of Hancock county.

STATEMENT MADE ON CIDER RULING

Warning against "misapprehension of the law as construed in this state," by reason of the acquittal of Congressman J. P. Hill at Baltimore, was issued by J. H. Gadd, federal prohibition commissioner of West Virginia, in a statement Friday of the policy to be pursued by his agents.

Reminding the public that the decision of the court in Maryland was not binding in this state, at least, pending possible final determination of the question by the supreme court of the United States, Mr. Gadd set forth his belief that the law forbids manufacture of beverages with one-half of one percent or more alcoholic content, and declared his staff would continue in accordance with that belief.

The statement follows: "The holding of the United States district court and the acquittal by a jury of Representative John Philip Hill in Baltimore today may give rise to a misapprehension of the law as construed in this state, and I feel it my duty to warn the public that this case is of no effect or force in West Virginia, and as I understand the Volstead act, no person has a right to manufacture wine or cider containing one-half of one percent or more of alcohol by volume.

"No permit is necessary for the manufacture of cider in this state for home use, but such cider must be non-intoxicating, and in view of the definition of the word 'intoxicating liquor' above referred to, non-intoxicating cider must contain less than one-half of one percent of alcohol by volume. That is the interpretation in this state so far as I know and the holding of my department."

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known down town druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

DR. BIEDERWOLF GIVES FIVE REASONS FOR HEAVEN

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, in his Saturday night sermon at the tabernacle, said:

Text, John 14:3. "I go to prepare a place for you."

If you should ask me why I know there is such a place as Heaven I would give you five reasons:

First. Because the human soul has always longed for such a place. You can go as far back as history will take you and find that is true.

Now I don't believe God would plant in the soul a universal longing like that without making some provision for its realization.

If I knew I was going to be annihilated or had to go to hell I never would want to leave this world. I don't know, I'd like to stay here a thousand years; I'm getting along fine. I think old Cleombrotus was a fool. But when the time comes and I have to die I want something better and bigger in every way, and if I can only know that this longing of mine is going to be satisfied, then it doesn't make so much difference when I go, whether I live a thousand years or die before the whistle blows tomorrow morning.

Second. Because the human soul has always felt there was such a place. That's the instinct of heaven that God planted in every soul.

Like the little boy flying his kite and the kite was out of sight and some one asked him where it was and he pointed up into the sky. And he said, "I know it is there because I can feel it." And in some such way as that I know there is a heaven because I feel the pull of it, the tug of it in my soul.

Third. Because the human soul needs just such a place as heaven. The best developments of this life are only fragmentary and the soul needs another life in order to go on to perfection.

Justice Demands Place.

Fourth. Because justice demands a place like heaven. Things are not fixed up right down here. God had it that way in the first place, but man, like the fool he has always been, mixed himself in and upset the whole thing. The whole business is out of balance and if all the heaven a man gets and all the hell a man gets he gets right here on this earth, as some of those sordid-minded, sin-loving non-compos mentis moral perverts claim, I'd like to know where justice comes in.

Fifth. And then in the last place which is really the first place, I believe there is such a place as heaven because God says there is. The whole Bible is full of it; and to doubt it for one second is to impeach divine wisdom, divine love and God's omnipotence.

I'd rather have God's word about anything than the opinion of all the philosophical literati and scientific dignitaries in the world when they try to make you believe that God don't know what he's talking about.

Some people say, "Don't talk so much about heaven; give us something practical." But I guess if Jesus asked so much about it we have a right to preach one sermon about it. Jesus said, "I go to prepare a place for you." He said, "In my father's house are many mansions." It says in Hebrews, "We have no continuing city, but we seek one to come. He says, 'Rejoice that your names are written in heaven.'"

And so I guess these five reasons ought to be enough to persuade us that there is a heaven.

And now you want to know something about it and I am going to tell you. I am not going to tell you what

I know about it. I could tell you a great deal that way I suppose. In fact, I could tell you all about it because the fellow who don't know is always the one who can tell the most. Paul was caught up into heaven you know, and he found it impossible to express what he saw, but the man who has never been there, it's dead easy for him; he can just throw open the door and let you see the whole thing, he'll take the door clear off the hinges for you.

Heaven is a Place. Now I am not going to tell you what I imagine heaven to be. Fancy and imagination and speculation don't amount to anything here, but God has told us a great deal about heaven, and what he has revealed is worth our while to consider.

First. Heaven is a place. Jesus said, "I go to prepare a place for you." Cannon Farrar wrote a book once and called it "Eternal Hope." It's long on surmise and short on logic. He says, "Heaven is to be something rather than to go somewhere." Well, it is to be something; it's a condition—sure; it's a state of mind and heart, but it's more. If Jesus went anywhere he must have gone somewhere. He couldn't go nowhere. Where is nowhere? Heaven is a place. Of course you couldn't be in a place without being in a condition and I am sure the condition you are in is more important than the place, and it would be better for a man to be in hell if he could keep the proper spirit in him there than to be in heaven and have the mind of the devil in him. Some of you wouldn't be fit for heaven if you did get in.

Second. Heaven is a prepared place. "I go to prepare a place for you." (1) It's commodious. He's made it big enough. God's never embarrassed for the want of space. When He made the universe He didn't use the earth and its moon as a model. Why this earth's so small it's a wonder God hasn't forgotten He ever made it. You can take an auger and bore a hole into the sun and pour 1,200,000 earths like this one into it and still have room for 4,900,000 moons to lie around the inside edge. You think that's big, but some of the fixed stars, like Alpha Centauri, for instance, are five times bigger than the sun.

The Starry Heavens. We talk about the sun being 93,000,000 miles away, and that's some distance I know, I could go to the moon, I could walk to it in 29 years if I only could get to the sun; if I'd charter the Pennsylvania Limited and hit her off sixty miles an hour it would take me 177 years to get there. Some distance you say the sun is. Yes, but wait. In the evening you look out into the west and you behold the most beautiful object in the heavens. It is Venus. She travels around the sun at the rate of 79,000 miles an hour and makes her revolution in 225 days. Venus isn't very far away, only 159,000,000 miles. When I finish this sermon I shall jump on a ray of light that travels, you know, at 182,000 miles in a second, say, "Hello," to the man in the moon in one and one-half seconds, tip my hat in four hours to those wonderful people that go think like on Mars, but I don't and be at Venus for 6 o'clock breakfast tomorrow morning; and back again here in time for the afternoon meeting. But Venus is just our next door neighbor.

There's old Jupiter, the "giant planet" of the skies, champion of the starry world with his two big belts of shining vapor, 385,000,000 miles away. And then talk about size! He's three times as big as all the rest of the planets put together. He turns on his axis once every ten hours and travels around the sun at the rate of 30,000 miles per hour and gets once around only in twelve years.

Yonder in the southeastern sky is old Saturn with her rings that got old Galileo a going so. She is 770,000,000 miles for the earth at the nearest point. How fast does the shell of a 13-inch gun travel? Fifteen miles a minute. Well, if the modern Krup gun could fire a projectile far enough at that rate it would take it 111 years. And then way out yonder, too far off prodigal luminary.

Next in order comes Uranus more than twice as far away as Saturn, 1,790,000,000 miles. She goes on her tireless way around the sun but it takes her 84 long years to make the circuit once.

And then way out yonder, too far for the naked eye to see, is the outermost planet of the solar system, old Neptune. If I'd take an airship and sail 100 miles an hour it would take me 3,000 years to get to old Neptune with her satellite. It takes her 165 years to go around the sun.

You talk about the sun being far away, 93,000,000 miles. Yet but the nearest star you ever saw in the sky is 275,000 times farther away than that. Alpha Centauri is the nearest star. The light you get from Alpha Centauri is four years old. It takes it that long to get here, traveling at the rate of 182,000 miles a second, as all light does.

But Alpha Centauri isn't far away. The North Star is 14 times farther. When we get an inter-stellar airplane system in operation you can take the trip. Paying 25 cents a mile it will cost you billions of dollars ($6,250,000,000,000.00) to go, and making 100 miles an hour, which is dead easy for an airship, you could arrive at the union depot in 408,000,000 years.

But the North Star isn't far away. There are stars a thousand times farther.

Talk about space and talk about size. Say, if old Neptune just over the way a little piece, is 75 times larger than the earth and you can't see it unless you go to Chicago and board a train for Lake Geneva and point the powerful Yerkes telescope with its forty-inch diameter lens, the largest refracting telescope in the world, and look through it, then tell me how far you suppose that beautiful star Lyra is that is 109,000 times farther away than Neptune and yet you can see it with your naked eye.

What God Concealed. Who conceived all this and brought it into existence? God! God! God! It makes me so warm under the collar to hear some little puny infidel disputing about God and finding fault with God's plan of salvation and other things that come out of the divine mind.

God's got plenty room. Billions have died and billions are here and billions are still to come and people say where is God going to put them all? He's got plenty of room. Over in Revelation it says an angel took the measure of heaven, "And it was 12,000 furlongs; the length, height and breadth of it are equal." 12,000 furlongs, that's nearly 9,000,000 feet and if you cube it you'll get 512 (quintillion), 000,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Now is the world stood for 100,000 years and always had and always will have a billion people on it dying off every generation, that would only make 300, (trillion) 000,000,000,000 people and this would give every one of them 177,000 cubic feet or a room 56 feet each way. And if that isn't big enough, God could send his surveying angels out through his boundary line around a few textillion acres more. There's room for the millions that have gone and for the millions and billions and trillions that are still to go. "In my Father's house are many mansions," many rooms is what it really says. God made it commodious and there's plenty of room.

Place of Beauty. Heaven is a beautiful place. God loves beauty or He wouldn't have put so much of it in this world. Who painted the butterfly's wing with all those gorgeous hues and threw around those pastel were the colors mixed that gave the rose its blushing charm and touched the lily with its dreamy white? Who taught the raindrop to take a ray of light from heaven's shining orb and pencil it on the sky in one huge arch of bewildering elegance? God did it all. He made everything beautiful, and only sin has marred it and in heaven you'll find God's beauty at its best.

John got a glimpse of it one day from his lonely island and he tried to tell us about it, but the best he could do was to use a few symbols our poor little minds could understand, and he said, "The walls are of Jasper, the foundations garnished with precious stones, every gate a pearl and the city is of pure gold."

Gates of Pearl. "Every gate a pearl." Who doesn't go into ecstasy over the luster of a perfect pearl? I heard one day that Bailey, Banks & Biddle, of Philadelphia, carried a fine selection of them and I managed to find someone who could introduce me to the pearl connoisseur, that's what you call them, about them, and I asked to see his finest pearls. He looked me over and he seemed surprised. "Oh!" I said, "I don't want to buy, but I would just like to look at them." And he took me through some iron gates and he laid on the palm of his hand one pearl, about the size of a bullet, and when I caught my breath, I said, "How much?" And he said, "Seven thousand dollars."

Oh, I can see it yet, I thought I was in a dream; the tint of it; the luster of it! Keep all the other precious stones but give me a pearl. I carry one with me just to look at—net like that one though. And, oh, the wonderful thought that every gate is a pearl and one day it will swing open and admit you and me to the dazzling beauty within.

I have heard of a little girl who was blind from birth and only knew of the beauties of earth from her mother's lips. A noted surgeon worked on her eyes and at last his operations were successful, and as the last bandage dropped away she flew into her mother's arms and then to the window and the open door, and as the glories of earth rolled into her vision she ran screaming back to her mother and said, "Oh, mamma, why didn't you tell me it was so beautiful?" And the mother wiped her tears of joy away and said, "My precious child, I tried to tell you but I couldn't do it." And one day when we go sweeping through those gates of pearl and catch our first vision of the enrapturing beauty all around us, I think we'll hush up. John who told us it was so beautiful. And John who said, "I tried to tell you when I wrote the twenty-first and twenty-second chapters of the last book in the Bible after it got my vision, but I couldn't do it."

And this is the heaven that God has prepared for you and for the poorest of them that believe in Him. He's made it beautiful.

Is Comfortable Place. (2) And then heaven is a comfortable place. Wouldn't it be a grand old world if that curse and blight and dawn it? God might transfer His headquarters and bring His angels down if it wasn't for that. But in heaven all these things are known.

There won't be any grinding toll. No blasting furnace to smelter around in steel mills and iron works. No heavy burdens to carry on tired shoulders. No sweat shops where poor widows toil in the foul air and the dim light. There'll be no trouble in heaven. The first thing you do when you are born is to cry and the last thing you do when you die is to groan, but "Earth has no sorrow that heaven can't heal."

There'll be no sickness there; no suffering. Some of us when we suffer a little make such a fuss about it there's no living with us, but some people suffer all their lives through and live in a moving prison and it must be hard, but it will be over there. Listen, Rev. 21:4, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain." No gasping for breath and failing to get it. The cheeks will never turn ashen and the eyes will never set in glassy stare. There will be no crepe to hang on the door. The undertaker will not come and screw down the coffin lid and there will be no hearse to head the sad journey to the grave. There will be no heart-breaking moment when the coffin is lowered and the clouds fall down. But our dear ones whom we love so much will never die. What a place it must be! No wonder the inspired apostle cried, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart, nor man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him." 1 Cor. 2:9.

III. But then heaven is not only a prepared place, a place whose builder and maker is God but it is a busy place. A heaven where we didn't do anything but sit by the crystal seas and pearly streams and gaze forever on the eternal beauty and dazzling effulgence about us would be too ghostly. It would be too senseless and insipid. That'll do for some old monk or idle dreamer but I wouldn't want to go there.

But there's going to be something doing in heaven all the time.

(1) It's a place of intellectual activity. And you can learn as much there in a day as you can learn here in a lifetime. You've been too poor to get an education down here or too stupid, but up there God'll give you one free and touch your dull mind into such intellectual acumen that you can grapple with all the infinite mysteries of the universe, a Mighty God how we thank you!

Much Social Activity. (2) And then heaven is a place of social activity. Christ will be there and will be the first to greet you at the door. He redeemed you, blessed be His name and He has a right to the first embrace.

Some one was asked what he expected to do when he got to heaven and he said he would take one good look at Jesus for about five hundred years and then he might look around for some one else he knew and loved on earth. It seems to me I'd never get through looking for Jesus. And I'd say, "Jesus, I thank you for saving me and I wish I had been a better Christian. I thank you for having honored me by letting me preach down on earth and I wish I had been able to do it better; you know, Jesus, how many times I made a miserable failure out of it. But say, Jesus, this is great. Is Abraham here? and Isaac and Paul and Moody and Spurgeon?"

"Yes, just push on further in; you will find them somewhere up near the throne of God."

I expect I'll go before my wife does. I'd live longer if I'd quit this terrible strain on my tired body and nerves every night; but I'd rather live ten years less and amount to something for God than to lie around like some of you do and die in disgrace with nothing in heaven to show for the time you spent.

Well, if I go before my wife, after I've seen Jesus, I know who I'll look for. I'll be my dear old mother. And I'll feel the touches of her blessed hand again on my cheek and hear her say, "My precious son, I'm so glad to see you; when did you come?"

And then, one glad hour the angels would announce the coming of my wife and after our first glorious greeting I'd say, "Come on, wife, and we'd go and sit down in some bright restful spot and I tell you we'd have enough to talk about."

"How is old Deacon N. wife?" "Been dead four years."

"Strange he isn't here, wife, he's had plenty of time to arrive. I made it myself in one-half minute all the way from Chicago. And tell me about Mrs. K.; she was president of the Ladies' Aid Society when I left; she occupied such a prominent pew and always having trouble with everybody and we never could get her church subscriptions out of her."

"Why isn't she here?" "No, I've never seen her."

"Well, what about old Jerry, the shoemaker; he's here, ain't he?" "Oh, yes, I see him every day, got a mansion just around from ours; you ought to see how his face shines; he had no trouble to get in; the angels sang him a welcome."

Some one you know, people said that when we go to heaven there will be three surprises. First, to see some people there we did not expect to see. Second, not to see some people there we don't expect to see. And third, the greatest surprise of all to find ourselves there. That third is not true; it would be to doubt the word of God and to slander the sacrifice of Jesus Christ in our behalf. "I know in whom I have believed and am persuaded" about this thing. I would be surprised if I found myself in hell but I've got my Lord's word about my heavenly inheritance, and when I get to heaven I don't expect to be surprised to find that Jesus has kept His word. But the other two surprises will be real enough.

Place of Select Society. I tell you it's going to be mighty select society up there. This earth wouldn't be such a bad place to live in—East Liverpool wouldn't be so bad—if it weren't for some of the people we have to tolerate. In East Liverpool you have backbiters, gossipers and meddlers in other people's business. In heaven you don't. In East Liverpool you have the avenging and the lewd and lustful. In heaven you don't. In East Liverpool you have the sneering skeptic and the godless, good-for-nothing atheist. In heaven you've got bootleggers, the dirty gang that sell the rotten stuff. In heaven the odor of the dirty stuff never defiles the nostrils. There are no gamblers there; no bars; but only the pure and noble and we shall enjoy their society forever.

DR. BIEDERWOLF GIVES FIVE REASONS FOR HEAVEN

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, in his Saturday night sermon at the tabernacle, said:

Text, John 14:3. "I go to prepare a place for you."

If you should ask me why I know there is such a place as Heaven I would give you five reasons:

First, Because the human soul has always longed for such a place. You can go as far back as history will take you and find that is true.

Now I don't believe God would plant in the soul a universal longing like that without making some provision for its realization.

If I knew I was going to be annihilated or had to go to hell I never would want to leave this world. I don't know, I'd like to stay here a thousand years. I'm getting along fine. I think old Cleombrotus was a fool. But when the time comes and I have to die I want something better and bigger in every way, and if I can only know that this longing of mine is going to be satisfied, then it don't make so much difference when I go, whether I live a thousand years or die before the whistle blows tomorrow morning.

Second, Because the human soul has always felt there was such a place. "That's the instinct of every soul," said God planted in every soul.

Like the little boy flying his kite and the kite was out of sight and some one asked him where it was and he pointed up into the skies. And he asked him how he knew it and he said, "I know it is there because I can feel it tug." And in some such way as that I know there is a heaven because I feel the tug of it, the tug of it in my soul.

Third, Because the human soul needs just such a place as heaven. The best developments of this life are only fragmentary and the soul needs another life in order to go on to perfection.

Justice Demands Place.

Fourth, Because justice demands a place like heaven. Things are not fixed up right down here. God had it that way in the first place, but man, like the fool he has always been, mixed himself in and upset the whole thing. The whole business is out of balance and if all the heaven angels and all the hell devils get together right here on this earth, as some of those sordid-minded, sin-loving non compos mentis moral perverts claim, I'd like to know where justice comes in.

Fifth, And then in the last place which is really the first place, I believe there is such a place as heaven because God says there is. The whole Bible is full of it; and to doubt it for one second is to impeach divine wisdom, divine love and God's omnipotence.

I'd rather have God's word about anything than the opinion of all the philosophical literati and scientific dignitaries in the world when they try to make you believe that God don't know what he's talking about.

Some people say, "Don't talk so much about heaven; give us something practical." But I guess if Jesus talked so much about it we have a right to preach one sermon about it. Jesus said, "I go to prepare a place for you." He said, "In my father's house are many mansions." It says in Hebrews, "We have no continuing city, but we seek one to come. He says, 'Rejoice that your names are written in heaven.'"

And so I guess these five reasons ought to be enough to persuade us that there is a heaven.

And now you want to know something about it and I am going to tell you. I am not going to tell you what

I know about it. I could tell you a great deal that way I suppose. In fact, I could tell you all about it because the fellow who don't know it because he never been there, it's dead easy for him; he can just throw open the door and let you see the whole thing, he'll rake the door clear off the hinges for you.

Heaven is a Place.

Now I am not going to tell you what I imagine heaven to be. Fancy and imagination and speculation don't amount to anything here, but God has told us a great deal about heaven, and what he has revealed is worth our while to consider.

First, Heaven is a place. Jesus said, "I go to prepare a place for you." Cannon Farrar wrote a book once and called it "Eternal Hope." It's long on surmise and short on logic. He says, "Heaven is to be something rather than to go somewhere. Well, it is to be something; it's a condition—sure; it's a state of mind and heart, but it's more; if Jesus went anywhere he must have gone somewhere. He couldn't go nowhere. Where is nowhere? Heaven is a place. Of course you couldn't be in a place without being in a condition and I am sure the condition you are in is more important than the place, and it would be better for a man to be in hell if he could keep the proper spirit in him there than to be in heaven and have the mind of the devil in him. Some of you wouldn't be fit for heaven if you did get in."

Second, Heaven is a prepared place. "I go to prepare a place for you."

(1) It's commodious. He's made it big enough. God's never embarrassed for the want of space. When He made the universe He didn't use the earth and its moon as a model. Why this earth's so small it's a wonder. He hasn't forgotten He ever made it. You can take an acre and bore a hole into the sun and pour 1,299,000 carloads like this one into it and still have room for 4,900,000 moons to lie around the inside edge. You think that's big, but some of the fixed stars, like Alpha Centauri, for instance, are five times bigger than the sun.

The Starry Heavens.

We talk about the sun being 93,000,000 miles away, and that's some distance I know, I could go to the moon, I could walk to it in 29 years if I only walked 24 miles a day. But I couldn't go to the sun; if I'd charter the Pennsylvania Limited and let her off sixty miles an hour it would take me 177 years to get there. Some distance you say the sun is. Yes, but wait. In the evening you look out into the west and you behold the most beautiful object in the heavens. It is Venus. She travels around the sun at the rate of 79,000 miles an hour and makes her revolution in 225 days. Venus isn't very far away, only 153,000,000 miles. When I finish this sermon I could jump on a ray of light that travels, you know, 192,000 miles in a second, say, "Hello," to the man in the moon in one and one-half seconds, tip my hat in four hours to those wonderful people that you think live on Mars, but I don't and be at Venus for 6 o'clock breakfast tomorrow morning; and back again here in time for the afternoon meeting. But Venus is just our door neighbor.

There's old Jupiter, the "giant planet" of the skies, champion of the starry world with his two big belts of shining vapor, 385,000,000 miles away. And then talk about size! He's three times as big as all the rest of the planets put together. He turns on his axis once every ten hours and travels around the sun at the rate of 30,000 miles per hour and gets once around only in twelve years.

Yonder in the southeastern sky is old Saturn with her rings that got old Galileo a going so. She is 779,000,000 miles for the earth at the nearest point. How fast does the shell of a 12-inch gun travel? Fifteen miles a minute. Well, if the billions of shells that God fired at the time of the creation that rate it would take it 111 years and then away yonder, too far off prodigious luminary.

Next in order comes Uranus more than twice as far away as Saturn, 1,790,000,000 miles. She goes on her tireless way around the sun but it takes her 84 long years to make the circuit once.

And then away yonder, too far for the naked eye to see, is the outermost planet of the solar system, old Neptune. If I'd take an airship and sail 100 miles an hour it would take me 3,000 years to get to old Neptune with her satellite. It takes her 165 years to go around the sun.

You talk about the sun being far away, 93,000,000 miles. Yet but the nearest star you ever saw in the sky is 275,000 times farther away than that. Alpha Centauri is the nearest star. The light you get from Alpha Centauri is four years old. It takes it that long to get here, traveling at the rate of 152,000 miles a second as all light does.

But Alpha Centauri isn't far away. The North Star is 14 times farther. When we get an inter-stellar aeroplane system in operation you can take the trip. Paying 2½ cents a mile it will cost you 35 cents to go and back ($8,250,000,000,000) to go, and making 100 miles an hour, which is dead easy for an airship, you could arrive at the union depot in 406,000,000 years.

But the North Star isn't far away. There are stars a thousand times farther.

Talk about space and talk about size. Say, if old Neptune just over the way a little piece, is 75 times larger than the earth and you can't see it unless you go to Chicago and board a train for Lake Geneva and point the powerful Yerkes telescope with its forty-inch diameter lens, the largest refracting telescope in the world, and look through it, then tell me how far do you suppose that beautiful star Lyra is that is 109,000 times farther away than Neptune and yet you can see it with your naked eye.

What God Concealed.

Who conceived all this and brought it into existence? God! God! God! It makes me so warm under the collar to hear some little puny infidel disputing about God and finding fault with God's plan of salvation and other things that come out of the divine mind.

God's got plenty of room. Billions have died and billions are here and billions are still to come and people say where is God going to put them all? He's got plenty of room. Over in Revelation it says an angel took the measure of heaven. "And it was 12,000 furlongs; the length, height and breadth of it are equal." 12,000 furlongs, that's nearly 8,000,000 feet and if you cube it you will get 512 (quintillion), 000,000,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Now is the world stood for 100,000 years and always had and always will have a billion people on it dying off every generation, that would only make 390, (trillion) 000,000,000,000 people and this would give every one of them 17,000 cubic feet of room, 56 feet each way. And if that isn't big enough, God could send his surveying angels out through his boundary line around a few textillion acres more. There's room for the millions that have gone and for the millions and billions and trillions that are still to go. "In my Father's house are many mansions," many rooms is what it really says. God made it commodious and there's plenty of room.

Place of Beauty.

(2) Heaven is a beautiful place. God loves beauty or He wouldn't have put so much of it in this world. Who painted the butterfly's wing with all those gorgeous hues and threw around the evening sun her drapery of a thousand living colors? From whose pastel were the colors mixed that gave the rose its blushing charm and touched the lily with its dreamy white? Who taught the raindrop to take a ray of light from heaven's shining orb and pencil it on the sky in one huge arch of bewildering elegance? God did it all. He made everything beautiful, and only sin has marred it and in heaven you'll find God's beauty at its best.

John got a glimpse of it one day from his lonely island and he tried to tell us about it, but the best he could do was to use a few symbols our poor little minds could understand, and he said, "The walls are of Jasper, the foundations garnished with precious stones, every gate a pearl and the city is of pure gold."

away. And then talk about size! He's three times as big as all the rest of the planets put together. He turns on his axis once every ten hours and travels around the sun at the rate of 30,000 miles per hour and gets once around only in twelve years.

Yonder in the southeastern sky is old Saturn with her rings that got old Galileo a going so. She is 779,000,000 miles for the earth at the nearest point. LISBON

COUNTY POMONA GRANGE MEETS

L. J. Tabor Endorsed for Vacant Place in Cabinet.

Columbiana County Pomona Grange at its annual meeting held in Hillview grange hall Saturday adopted a resolution that will be forwarded to President Calvin Coolidge, urging the appointment of L. J. Tabor as secretary of agriculture, to take the place of Secretary Wallace, deceased.

Another resolution, urged upon state grange officers to strive to have a law passed that in effect would withhold state money from any county agricultural society or association that permits games of chance upon its grounds during a fair season.

Still another resolution reads: "Whereas crime of all kinds is on the increase, and life and property are no longer safe, therefore be it resolved that we favor more stringent laws in suppression of crime and a more strict enforcement in the letter of the law, with a specific time of imprisonment rather than a sentence of from one to 20 years as is so often imposed."

The county grange also declared that it has cost millions of dollars to build the improved roads of Ohio, and that it will probably cost untold millions more to build and maintain such roads, for the heavy trucks and busses which now use them. Probably less than one-tenth of one percent of the people are interested in the heavier than five-ton loads, and that the elimination of the heavier than five-ton truck loads would double or treble the life of the roads.

"Therefore we ask the officers of the state grange to frame a bill and take the necessary steps to place it on the ballot at the first general election possible the question of limiting the gross weight of motor vehicles on all state and county roads to five tons; the penalty for excess loads to be not less than $1 per ton or fraction thereof per mile, with a minimum fine of $25."

The entire legislative program of the state grange as it has now been prepared was endorsed by Pomona.

The various granges in Columbiana county have a membership of slightly over 3,400. Eighteen granges at the meeting Saturday night reported a membership of 2,600. Eight granges with a membership of 799 did not report. The gain in new membership during the year has been steady, county officers disclosed. Eighteen granges initiated 32 members during the year, and 12 subordinate grange members have been added to Pomona grange. Thirty applications for membership are pending in the various subordinate granges.

Elkrun grange leads the membership work for the old year, having received six members and having seven applications now on file. Elkrun grange also boasts of having the only ladies' degree team in the county.

Perry grange took second place in the membership race during the old year, having initiated five members and has five applications pending. Clarkson grange has initiated nine members within the last year.

Mark Borton was elected master of Pomona, succeeding W. H. Boone, who retires after serving two terms. Mary Linton has been elected secretary and W. H. Morris of Elkrun grange has been re-elected lecturer for Pomona for the second term. Other officers elected are: Gatekeeper, George Barnes; Pomona, Mrs. Rene Whiteleather; flora, Mrs. B. L. Cobbs.

The legislative committee is composed of the following: W. H. Boone, Salem; Lizzy Heastand, Moultrie; O. R. Shively, Bayard.

The executive committee is composed of John Shelton, Leetonia; R. F. Dailey, East Liverpool; Mrs. Van J. Morris, Lisbon.

In his address of welcome, L. R. Whinnery, master of Willow Grove grange, declared that a "gathering of this kind is always welcome to the community, whether it be a lodge or a grange, because organizations like the grange are the backbone of the country and what holds it together."

W. H. Boone, who retired as master of Pomona, addressed the meeting on "Peace and War" and declared that "in my opinion the cause of war is greed for money, fame or power." He said that he did not have much faith in converting the money lender or king, but that there was a necessity to educate the common people that war will no longer be tolerated. He pointed out the danger the health countries furnish to a country that adopts a peace at any price slogan, and touted the great cost of war. "The cost of the late war," Mr. Boone said, "would have built a national pike across the United States, or could have been put in a network of national pikes, so that no one need never be over three miles from a good road."

Instrumental music was furnished by the orchestra from Mile Branch grange, and Miss Ruth Wyss of Hillview grange entertained with a piano solo. Members of Butler range rendered a musical number which was followed by a reading, "The Open Talk," by Mrs. Emerson Conrad of Willow Grove grange.

Mrs. Goldie Swann of Clarkson Pulp played piano and sang.

followed by a monologue by Thelma Stoffer of Hillview grange. "The Farmer Lads and Lassies" was a character song presented by four girls and one boy from Hillview grange.

County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Leonard was the principal speaker at this meeting of Pomona. He urged upon the members of Pomona to back the movement to supply Columbiana county with modern rural schools.

The next meeting of Pomona will be held February 21, but this place has not been selected. The meeting, however, is expected to be held in the vicinity of either Lisbon or Salem, where improved roads are maintained.

Cases Being Listed For Consideration By Next Grand Jury

Although no special session of the grand jury is expected to be ordered by Judge James G. Moore before January, which is the usual time for the next term of court, work for the next grand jury has begun to be made a matter of record by Clerk of Courts John T. Burns.

The transcript in the case of Girard Roberts has been received from the court of Mayor Charles Brown of East Liverpool. He is charged with shooting with intent to kill, and the court has placed bond at $2,000.

NEWS FROM TOWNS IN TRI-STATE DISTRICT

LISBON

COUNTY POMONA GRANGE MEETS

L. J. Tabor Endorsed for Vacant Place in Cabinet.

Columbiana County Pomona Grange at its annual meeting held in Hillville grange hall Saturday adopted a resolution that will be forwarded to President Calvin Coolidge, urging the appointment of L. J. Tabor as secretary of agriculture, to take the place of Secretary Wallace, deceased.

Another resolution urged upon state grange officers to strive to have a law passed that in effect would withhold state money from any county agricultural society or association that permits games of chance upon its grounds during a fair season.

Still another resolution reads: "Whereas crime of all kinds is on the increase and life and property are no longer safe, therefore be it resolved that we favor more stringent laws in suppression of crime and a more strict enforcement in the letter of the law, with a specific time of imprisonment rather than a sentence of from one to 20 years as is so often imposed."

The county grange also declared that it has cost millions of dollars to build the improved roads of Ohio, and that it will probably cost untold millions more to build and maintain such roads, for the use of them. Probably less than one-tenth of one percent of the people are interested in the heavier than five-ton loads, and that the elimination of the heavier than five-ton truck loads would double or treble the life of the roads.

"Therefore we ask the officers of the state grange to frame a bill and take the necessary steps to place it on the ballot at the first general election possible the question of limiting the gross weight of motor vehicles on all state and county roads to five tons; the penalty for excess loads to be not less than $1 per ton or fraction thereof per mile, with a minimum fine of $25."

The entire legislative program of the state grange as it has now been prepared was endorsed by Pomona.

The various granges in Columbiana county have a membership of slightly over 3,400. Eighteen granges at the meeting Saturday night reported a membership of 2,600. Eight granges with a membership of 799 did not report. The gain in new membership during the year has been steady, county officers disclosed. Eighteen granges initiated 32 members during the year, and 12 subordinate granges have been added to Pomona grange. Thirty applications for membership are pending in the various subordinate granges.

Elkrun grange leads the membership work for the old year, having received six members and having seven applications now on file. Elkrun grange also boasts of having the only ladies' degree team in the county.

Perry grange took second place in the membership race during the old year, having initiated five members and has five applications pending. Clarkson grange has initiated nine members within the last year.

Mile Branch grange, while having the largest membership in the county, has only four applications for membership pending, its report to Pomona disclosed.

Mark Borton was elected master of Pomona, succeeding W. H. Boone, who retired after serving two terms. Mary Linton has been elected secretary and W. H. Morris of Elkrun grange has been re-elected lecturer for Pomona for the second term. Other officers elected are: Gatekeeper, George Barnes; Pomona, Mrs. Rene Whiteleather; Flora, Mrs. B. L. Cobbs.

The legislative committee is composed of the following: W. H. Boone, Salem; Lizzie Heastand, Moultrie; O. R. Shively, Bayard.

The executive committee is composed of John Shelton, Leetonia; R. F. Bailey, East Liverpool; Mrs. Van J. Morris, Lisbon.

In his address of welcome, L. R. Whinnery, master of Willow Grove grange, declared that a "gathering of this kind is always welcome to the community, whether it be a lodge or a grange, because organizations like the grange are the backbone of the country and what holds it together."

W. H. Boone, who retired as master of Pomona, addressed the meeting on "Peace and War" and declared that "in my opinion the cause of war is greed for money, fame or power." He said that he did not have much faith in converting the money lender or king, but that there was a necessity to educate the common people that war will no longer be tolerated. He pointed out the danger the health of countries furnish to a country that adopts a peace at any price slogan, and touted the great cost of war. "The cost of the late war," Mr. Boone said, "would have built a national pike across the United States, or could have been put in a network of national pikes, so that no one need never be over three miles from a good road."

Instrumental music was furnished by the orchestra from Mile Branch grange, and Miss Ruth Wray of Hillview grange entertained with a piano solo. Members of Butler range rendered a musical number which was followed by a reading, "The Open Talk," by Mrs. Emerson Conrad of Willow Grove grange.

Mrs. Gokke Swartz of Hillview played a piano solo.

Review-Tribune County News Bureau, West Park Avenue—Bell Phone 319-R M. K. Zimmerman, Representative

followed by a monologue by Thelma Stoffer of Hillview grange. "The Farmer Lads and Lassies" was a character song presented by four girls and one boy from Hillview grange.

County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Leonard was the principal speaker at this meeting of Pomona. He urged upon the members of Pomona to back the movement to supply Columbiana county with modern rural schools.

The next meeting of Pomona will be held February 21, but the place has not been selected. The meeting, however, is expected to be held in the vicinity of either Lisbon or Salem, where improved roads are maintained.

What You Should Know about a baby's care

Illness is usually due to constipation. Quickly give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

THE young mother should watch which foods the baby relishes most, which foods and their quantity cause distress, and act accordingly.

The good health of a baby is largely a matter of intelligent attention to diet. Nevertheless, in spite of your efforts you will sometimes notice belching, flatulence, wind and symptoms of colicky pain.

Give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and thereafter vary the offending food. Syrup Pepsin is a laxative admirably suited to infants and children, as it is mild and wholly free from opiates and narcotics.

If you delay in giving it you will soon find the baby suffering from constipation, and that may lead to more serious illness. Half a teaspoonful promptly given will avoid trouble.

Many thousands of mothers have never given their babies any other medicine but Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and they have successfully raised large and sturdy families. The formula is not a secret, being a combination of Egyptian senna with pepsin, and agreeable aromatic ingredients. The ingredients are stated on the package. Mrs. Dewey Walker, Elda, N. M., and Mrs. B. Higginbotham, Otter Creek, Fla., are among the many who are firm believers that Syrup Pepsin has kept their families and themselves in good health.

No family with young children can afford to be without such a household medicine. It is effective, beneficial and safe regardless of your age and has been considered so for over thirty years. In consequence it is today the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being sold annually.

You will find that Syrup Pepsin quickly brings relief in the severest chronic constipation, in biliousness, lack of appetite, sleeplessness, headache, cankers, bad breath, and to stop a cold or fever.

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Syrup Pepsin Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not include postage. It is free.

Every druggist sells it, and the cost on the average is less than a cent a dose. It is guaranteed to be effective in these symptoms, and your money will be refunded.

Young Iclander Plans Pole Flight In Small Airplane

LONDON.—Gretir Algarsson, young iclander explorer, who recently took a vacation party to the Arctic Circle, announces that next year he proposes to make a sensational one-man dash for the North Pole in a low-powered aeroplane from a small base-ship 600 miles away. He will sail from London about May 1 in the eighty-foot steam drifter Aduna the Fair and will carry, besides the aeroplane in which he proposes to make his attempt, a small launch, sledges, and scientific instruments worth $100,000. "The main object of my expedition is to discover islands believed to exist between Spitzbergen and Franz Joseph Land. This will be undertaken by the ship, which I shall leave when about six hundred miles distant from the North Pole," Algarsson said in an interview. "The aeroplane which I propose to use is a development of the small, high-powered machines now being extensively used in England. It will carry fuel for 1,300 flying miles. It will also carry a wireless set, weighing only half a pound, for the reception of weather reports. "I think that I have a good chance of succeeding in reaching the Pole."

"Run away, will you?" panted Trevors. "I've got you, d—n you. Got you right."

Lee didn't answer. He was thinking dully that Bayne Trevors was near telling the truth, that Bud Lee was almost beaten—almost. That was as far as a gentleman ever went—just to that desperate "almost beaten." Not quite. No! not quite. Never that.

Both men were nearly spent; Carson saw that while he cursed softly in his corner; Melvin saw it and watched for the end, wondering just how it would come. Trevors should swing for the point of the jaw, put all that was in him into a final, smashing blow, beat through an insufficient guard, do it now, quickly. For both Carson and Melvin saw another thing, a thing which both had sensed at the outset: Bud Lee was harder than Bayne Trevors. Lee, slipping away at every step was getting something back which had nearly gone from him; Trevors was breathing in noisy jerks; save for the vital fact that he now had two hands to Bud Lee's one, Trevors was showing more signs of weariness than Lee.

"Bud'll get him—somehow," whispered Carson. "Good old Bud. Somehow."

What Carson and Melvin sensed Trevors knew. He saw that Lee was having less trouble in eluding him now, that Lee's feet were quicker, lighter than his, that Lee was beginning to strike back viciously at him, and when the blow landed, Trevors' big body rocked, shot through with pain. There came to him the thought which was Melvin's, but it came in Trevors' way: Now, quickly, before Lee was ready for it, must come the end. So, for the third time that day Bayne Trevors, with much at stake, resorted to "what weapons God gave him, what weapons he could lay his mind to, his eyes to, his hands to"—his feet to. Resorting to the old trick which came up from South American ports in disreputable wind-jammers which is known to the San Francisco waterfront, he raised a heavy foot, striking for Lee's stomach, seeking with one low, horrible blow to double up his already handicapped antagonist in writhing pain on the floor.

"An' I gave my word!" bellowed Carson, the sweat on his own tortured brow. "Oh, my Gawd."

But just that one brief instant too late did Bayne Trevors lift his foot. For Bud Lee had expected this, never had forgotten it, had prayed within his soul that the man he fought would use it. Just by that fraction of time which has no name was he quicker than Trevors, and he knew it. Now, as he read the sinister purpose in Trevors' glaring eyes, as he glimpsed the raised foot as it left the floor, he lowered his own head, averted it ever so little, stooped—and his hand closed like locked iron about the calf of Trevors' leg. A stifled cry from the bulkier man, a little grunt of effort from Lee. Lee straining, heaving mightily, and Trevors went back toppled, fought for his slipping balance, and fell. As he went down Lee was upon him, Lee's arm about his neck, Lee's weight flung upon him, Lee holding his body between a powerful pair of knees which rode him as they rode daily some struggling Blue Lake colt.

Now Bud's left arm, defying the agony of a broken hand, was around him, Lee's legs were about the frantically fighting body, and at last Lee's right hand went its sure way to the thick, bared, pulsing throat. Trevors' right arm was caught at his side, held there by the body upon him. His left hand beat at Lee's face, struck and battered again only to come back like a steam-driven piston to hammer again. But Bud Lee's pain-racked body clung on, his thumb and fingers sank and sank deeper into the corded muscles of the heaving throat, crooked like talons, white and hard and relentless.

Trevors' eyes were terrible, filled with hatred, red-flecked with rage. He sought, with a great sudden heave, to roll over. But he could not shake off the legs which were like stubborn tentacles about him, could not free his throat of the ensing clutch. He tore at the wrist, smote again at Lee's head, set his own hand to Lee's throat. In an instant his hand was back at the hand worrying him, but he was unable to drag it away.

His face went white, flamed red, grew purplish. His eyes bulged up at Lee's, his deep chest spasmodically. Lee, summoning all of the force within him, drove thumb and fingers deeper.

"Got enough?" he panted.

For the last time Trevors strained with him and they rolled like death-locked mountain lions. But still Lee's left arm was about Trevors' neck, his legs about the tossing body, his hand at Trevors' throat. Trevors' breath caught, failed him. . . .

Then and then only did a new look come into the bulging eyes. A look of more than fear, or after desperate terror. Trevors threw up his hand weakly, then let it fall so that it struck the floor heavily, a dead weight.

Lee's grip at the strangling throat relaxed. But he did not move his hand.

"Got enough?" he panted again.

The answer came brokenly, weakly, almost inarticulate. But it did come and the men drawn close heard it:

"Yes."

"You'll get out of the country?"

"Yes."

Bud Lee drew back and rose, going to the door swiftly. He stooped for his hat and passed out. And as Bayne Trevors got unsteadily to his feet and sank slumping into the chair offered him, two big tears formed in his eyes and rolled down his cheeks. The first tears in many a year, the tears of a strong man broken for the first time in his life.

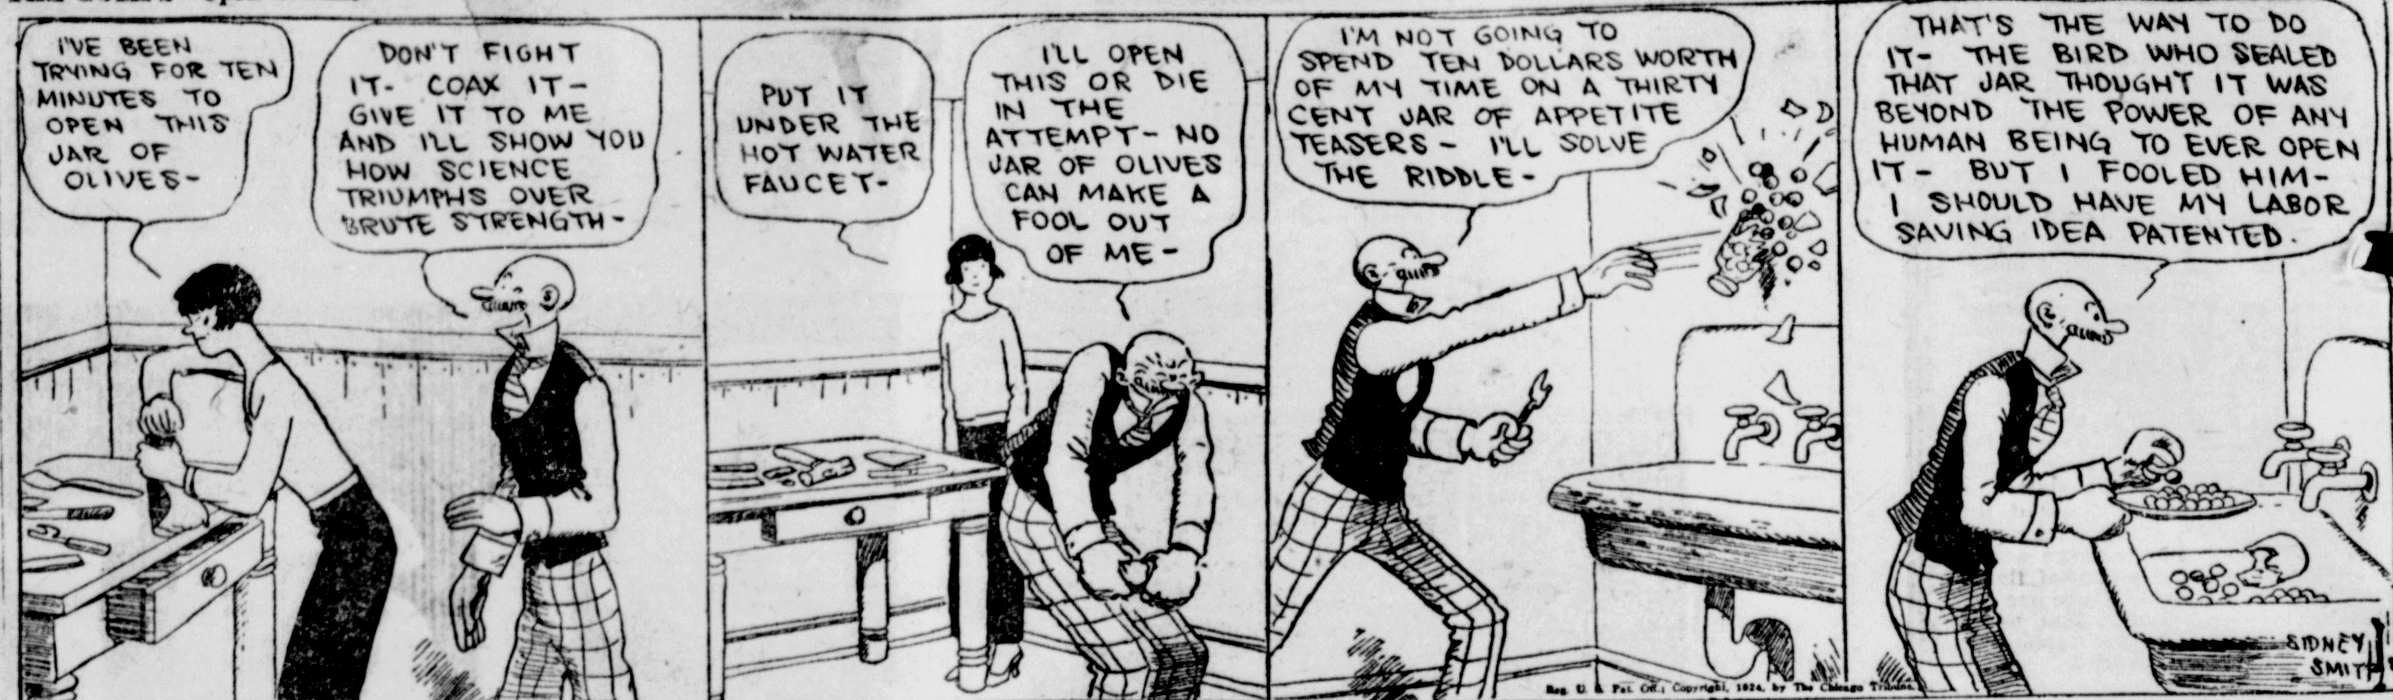

"Sand did it!" granted Melvin. "Just sand, Carson."

"I'll stick aroun' an' see he moves on, Bud," Carson followed Lee to say. "Oh, he'll go. But I'll just tell him how the boys is headed this way by now an' it's tar an' feathers for him if he don't mosey right along. That's something he couldn't stand right now. An', Bud—"

He put out his hands and locked Lee's in a grip that made the sore fingers wince. Then, swinging upon the heel of his boot, he went back to collect a hundred dollars from Melvin and help Bayne Trevors shape his plans.

Dear Sir:
It has come to my attention during the last few days that considerable criticism has been directed against the ex-service men of our city for their failure to stage an Armistice Day celebration here last Tuesday. I believe that if the public understood conditions, which prevailed two years ago, they would not place the blame on the soldiers but come to the realization that it is they and not the ex-service men, who are to blame.

Two years ago, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion, both of which are representative ex-service men's organizations of this city, not together many weeks prior to Armistice Day to arrange a celebration. Ways and means of financing it were considered. Some one suggested that the money might be obtained from the $15,000 balance remaining in the War Chest.

A committee called upon two members of the War Chest, executive board, but were flatly refused, these members holding that the contributors, in an election conducted after the close of the war, had decided that the money could not be used for a celebration, despite the fact that the purpose of the fund when raised was "for the relief and entertainment of the soldier boys."

Another meeting of the committee was called and arrangements then made for a football game on Armistice Day which it was thought should bring sufficient revenue to meet the expenses of the day's celebration.

Tickets were placed on sale and every effort was made by members of the two organizations to dispose of them, but the people did not buy and the football game proved disastrous as far as financial returns were concerned. When the committee met following Armistice Day to settle up, there was a deficit of $150, including the expenses of the band.

Believing that the merchants would meet this deficit a subscription paper was circulated but "times were hard" and little money was obtained from this source. As a result, the two organizations were forced to go down into their post funds for an equal amount to pay the bills for a celebration which was put on for the public. The two posts then and there decided that if East Liverpool ever had another celebration for the soldiers it would be the public who would meet the bills and not the ex-service men.

Last year, a prominent professional man, whose name I will not mention here, remembering a promise which he had given the "boys" on the preceding Armistice Day, attempted to interest a number of business men and manufacturers in a program for the day which would not only entertain the soldiers but the public as well.

His plans called for a parade of the patriotic orders in the morning, a football game and athletic program in the afternoon, a barbers, vaudeville show and other entertainment in the evening, under a tent to be erected in the West End ball grounds. His plans were to make the day a holiday, one of real celebration such as prevailed in 1918, all at an expense estimated not to exceed $2,000. Although this party made repeated attempts to get his committee together, they could not be interested and, finally losing heart in the entire affair, he threw up his hands and quit. So Armistice Day once more passed off without festivities of any sort.

Still holding to their belief that it was not the duty of the soldiers to entertain the public on Armistice Day, neither of the two organizations made any attempt to celebrate the day, many of their members going to Wellsville, Pittsburgh, Lisbon, Salem and other nearby towns where the soldiers are still respected and honored and where patriotism seems to be not entirely dead.

East Liverpool was the only city in the county of any size in which no celebration was held this year. Wellsville, East Palestine, Salem, Lisbon and practically every other city staged celebrations. Stores and factories were closed for at least part of the day, merchants and manufacturers doing everything possible to make the celebration a success. Soldier organizations in these places were not required to stand the expense of the celebration which was paid for by the public either through an organization or by public subscription.

Last Tuesday morning, I stood on the postoffice steps and looked down Fifth street. I counted six flags as far as I could see—only six. Where is this patriotism that was so evident in the stirring days of '18 when the soldiers were on the battle front or in the training camps? But six merchants thought enough of the day to display the stars and stripes. The members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion and all the ex-service men of the city, for that part I am sure regret the passing of such a great day as Armistice Day without a marked observance but unless the public steps to the front and takes enough interest in the day to finance it, I believe that Armistice Day never will be celebrated here again.

The soldiers stand ready at any time to assist in celebrating the ending of the great war and pay homage to those who made the supreme sacrifice but feel that some one else should foot the bill.

As a member of one of the two veteran organizations, I submit these facts which I know to be the absolute truth.

Leetonia Gridders Win From Highs and Cop County Title

Boone's Squad Goes Down to 6-0 Defeat In Red Hot Battle

Morbido, Visitors' Heavy Artillery, Punches Local Line for Sole Score in Final Quarter; Locals Lose Big Chance on 11-yard line.

Reaching the heights to which they have striven for many years with little measure of success, Leetonia high school gridders today stand out as champions of the Columbiana county scholastic football circuit as a result of their 6 to 0 victory over Coach O. V. Boone's eleven Saturday afternoon at Patterson field in one of the sternest battles of the season on the local lot.

A fumble and an erratic kick placed the visitors in a position to count at the close of the third period and they took advantage of their opportunity when Morbido, one of the outstanding back field men in county scholastic circles, punched the Blue and White line on the second play of the final period for a touchdown.

Muddy, sticky footing made East Liverpool's most potent weapon, the forward pass, a trifle insecure, and it was not used until the final quarter. The aerial attack, however, worked the team into scoring position, on the 11-yard line, and there, with a yard to go to make first down, an off-tackle thrust lost a yard and with it went all possibilities of success.

Ironically enough, statistics of the contest reveal the fact that Boone's gridders outgained the visitors by a ratio of approximately three to one. The locals registered 15 first downs during the four periods with Leetonia getting six. Honors were even in the opening quarter, each team making two first downs. The locals registered five in the second to Leetonia's one. Each eleven made a first down in the third. In the final the Blue and White was credited with seven and Leetonia two.

McConville's pass throwing, as always, was his outstanding feature of the clash. His throws had accuracy and distance, but the mud made it difficult for the receivers. Along this line, English developed into a star of no mean proportions. He was the principal threat in the aerial attack in the final quarter, being on the receiving end of the majority of the heaves.

The East Liverpool line, from end to end, played the best game of its 1924 career.

GRANGE LEADS 'TEN' SCORERS

Expected to Lose Top Place as Result of Injury.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Red Grange, star of the Illinois gridiron aggregation, was still leading in the Big Ten individual scoring today, despite the fact that the opposition given by Minnesota Saturday held him to one touchdown. The lone marker.

Rockwell of Michigan picked up nine points and was in second place. Next Saturday, however, may see the doughty "Red" ousted from the Big Ten scoring leadership inasmuch as ractors have decreed his injury suffered yesterday will definitely keep him out of the Illinois-Ohio clash next week. Doctors today said that his shoulder blade had been torn loose, not an uncommon injury on the football field, but that no bones had been broken and that he probably would be able to resume play in a couple of weeks.

DECORATORS WIN VOLLEY SERIES

The Decorators took three from Babcock Wilcox, 15-0, 15-2, and 15-3, and Smith-Phillips won two out of three from Laughlin, E. E., 17-7, 9-15, and 15-12, in "Y" industrial volley ball games Saturday.

Notre Dame Stands Out For National Football Honors

Deserves Highest Ranking, Says Critic, on It Record Alone, With Victories Over Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin, Nebraska.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—This being the age of modern miracles, where Princeton runs up twenty-two first downs on Harvard, then turns around and gets but three against Yale, and Illinois, reputed to have been the best team in the Big Ten, loses to Minnesota, reputed to be one of the weakest, there is but one logical course to pursue:

Match up Notre Dame and the Southwestern teachers and shoot the roll on the latter. In the natural course of events the teachers inevitably must win or forever ruin a continuity of upsets such as no season in gridiron history has known.

The well-known can was applied to the equally well known climax on Saturday when Yale beat Princeton. Minnesota stopped Grange and Perforce Illinois, Centre College stepped right over Alabama, Bucknell took the Penn State tied Pennsylvania; Kansas stopped Oklahoma; Columbia got a stand off with the Army and so on ad infinitum.

The only team that failed to embarrass the intelligencia were Notre Dame, California, Dartmouth and Stanford and the writer sees no reason why they should not be rewarded by rating them at the pinnacle of National standing. Of the four named, Notre Dame would seem to deserve the highest ranking on its record.

It has beaten the Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin and Nebraska in the order named and an opponent has yet to make it look close, let alone score a victory, or get a tie. Notre Dame and Stanford are the only big timers with records that are with Dartmouth and the Army, California suffered a tie with Washington, so did Pennsylvania with Penn State, Rutgers with Lehigh, and Chicago, new leader of the big ten, with Ohio State and Illinois.

The eastern situation is particularly muddled, no outfit having a clear title to supremacy. Dartmouth perhaps rates the most earnest consideration in view of the fact that it played a harder schedule than has Pennsylvania, Rutgers, Yale or Lehigh ever should the bulldog romp all over Harvard next Saturday there will be a plausible tendency to rank him at the top. For Yale also has dallied with a heavy list of games and played very smart football against Princeton.

The outcome of this game still left the eastern future of the middle in doubt. The system in question was a rollicking success against Harvard which passively remained on the line of scrimmage diagnosing the play. Yale didn't jump into position until Princeton did and broke up nearly every play the Tigers attempted.

Notre Dame, of course, rules the middle west and only the rankest kind of an upset can prevent the Irish from stepping through their season without a defeat. They must take on northwestern and Carnegie Tech on successive Saturdays and except for the handicap of being favored by form, should win on the bit.

The status of California and Stanford will best be determined when they take on Pennsylvania and another sectional rival in postseason games on the Sandown Stone. They undoubtedly hold the upper hand in the Rocky Mountain district with Drake and Missouri leading the way in the Missouri valley conference.

Nebraska would have been out in front with the rest of them if the coachmakers hadn't finished second to Oklahoma, a team that did not make good on its promise in the early second game.

Boone's Squad Goes Down to 6-0 Defeat In Red Hot Battle

Stockdale gathered in the next one and took the ball to the 20. Four more were fruitless and Leetonia took the ball on the 20. Morbido cut through center for 13 yards. Nichols was held. Altamare made four at left tackle and Greer two at right tackle. Morbido made a first down on the 45. It was Leetonia's final thrust and the ball went to East Liverpool. Several short passes were completed by the locals but they failed to make their 10 yards and play ended near midfield.

GRANGE LEADS 'TEN' SCORERS

Expected to Lose Top Place as Result of Injury.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Red Grange, star of the Illinois gridiron aggregation, was still leading in the Big Ten individual scoring today, despite the fact that the opposition gave by Minnesota Saturday held him to one touchdown. The lone marker.
Rockwell of Michigan picked up nine points and was in second place.
Next Saturday, however, may see the doughty "Red" ousted from the Big Ten scoring leadership inasmuch as roctors have decreed his injury suffered yesterday will definitely keep him out of the Illinois-Ohio clash next week. Doctors today said that his shoulder blade had been torn loose, not an uncommon injury on the football field, but that no bones had been broken and that he probably would be able to resume play in a couple of weeks.

Notre Dame Stands Out For National Football Honors

Deserves Highest Ranking, Says Critic, on It Record Alone, With Victories Over Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin, Nebraska.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—This being the age of modern miracles, where Princeton runs up twenty-two first downs on Harvard, then turns around and gets but three against Yale, and Illinois, reputed to have been the best team in the Big Ten, loses to Minnesota, reputed to be one of the weakest, there is but one logical course to pursue:
Match up Notre Dame and the Southwestern teachers and shoot the roll on the latter. In the natural course of events the teachers inevitably must win or forever ruin a continuity of upsets such as no season in gridiron history has known.

The well-known can be applied to the equally well known climax on Saturday when Yale beat Princeton. Minnesota stopped Grance and Perforce Illinois, Centre College stepped right over Alabama. Bucknell took the Penn State tied Pennsylvania; Kansas stopped Oklahoma; Columbia stood off with the Army and so on ad infinitum.

The only team that failed to embarrass the intelligencia were Notre Dame, California, Dartmouth and Stanford and the writer sees no reason why they should not be rewarded by rating them at the pinnacle of National standing Of the four named, Notre Dame would seem to deserve the highest ranking on its record. Princeton, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin and coraska in the order named and an opponent has yet to make it look close, let alone score a victory, or get a tie. Notre Dame and Stanford are the only big timers with records that cry criticism.

As for the others Yale has played a tie with Dartmouth and the Army, California suffered a tie with Wasaington, so did Pennsylvania with Penn State, Rutgers with Lehigh, and Chicago, new leader of the big ten, with Ohio State and Illinois.

The eastern situation is particularly muddled, no outfit having a clear title to supremacy. Dartmouth perhaps rates the most earnest consideration in view of the fact that it played a harder schedule than has Pennsylvania, Rutgers, Yale or Lehigh ever should the bulldog romp all over Harvard next Saturday there will be a plausible tendency to rank him at the top. For Yale also has dallied with a heavy list of games and played very smart football against Princeton.

The outcome of this game still left the eastern future of the muddle in doubt. The system in question was a rollicking success against Harvard which passively remained on the line of scrimmage diagnosing the play. Yale didn't jump into position until Princeton did and broke up nearly every play the Tigers attempted.

Notre Dame, of course, rules the middlewest and only the rankest kind of an upset can prevent the Irish from stepping through their season without a defeat. They must take on northwestern and Carnegie Tech on successive Saturdays and except for the handicap of being favored by form, should win on the bit.

The status of California and Stanford will best be determined when they take on Pennsylvania and another sectional rival in postseason games on the Sandown Slope. They undoubtedly hold the upper hand in the Rocky Mountain district with Drake and Missouri leading the way in the Missouri valley conference.

Nabraska would have been out in front with the rest of them if the coachbuilders hadn't finished second to Oklahoma, a team that did not make good on its promise in the early second game.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

BY NORMAN E. BROWN

Those who follow the business end of baseball quite closely are interested in Connie Mack's failure to offer most of his Athletics new contracts before allowing them to depart for the fireside, hunting parties, corner beauty and beauty parlors (Boy, page Mr. Bruggy).

In years gone by Connie has been at the ball park door after the final game of the season and given the boys a chance to sign on the dotted line for the coming season. This year there was nothing at the door but the block to hold it open.

The probabilities are that Mack intends to trade one or two of his huskies before spring rolls around and wants to consider seriously the salary matters of some of the men who have been rated as stars on paper but who have failed to make the grade for the Long Cent.

As the team finished last season it had several new faces. One or two pitchers who drew high salaries because of their good work in 1922 and 1923 were warming the bench. Connie is rather tight on pitchers who have the stuff but can't seem to distribute it from the mound.

And then, there's that $100,000 to be paid the Baltimore club for Lefty Groves. Which means that the purse strings will be held a bit tight for a little while at least.

It would be interesting to read Connie's mind just at this time. Speaking of the European tour of the Giants and White Sox—or weren't we wonder just how much thought Owner McGraw of the former team is giving toward cleaning up the O'Connell-Dolan mess while abroad. This is a good time for weighing carefully the actions, on and off the field, of his players last year and running to earth any semblance of a cut-throat action might give toward eliminating a repetition of such a spectacle.

According to word from the east Manager Stanley Harris and Clark Griffith are having a little disagreement over the salary the suddenly famous Mr. Harris is to receive. The young and peppery pilot has asked that his pay check for 1925 be $18,000, or just double that of the one his fortune in the pictures. Miss Dana has an especially strong part as sophisticated little actress who "mothers" him and eventually forces him against his will to achieve ambition.

"Merton" comes to the Ceramic Theatre today for a three days' run. Insurance against death is a mighty good investment, but a periodic physical examination furnishes good insurance against disease.

TORONTO DROPS OPENING CLASH

Stubbers Outwit Tigers in First Series Game.

STUEBENVILLE, O., Nov. 17.—The Steubenville American Legion pros, playing their best game of the year, defeated the Toronto Tigers, 10 to 0, here Sunday afternoon in the first game of a series to decide the Ohio Valley championship. A crowd of 6,000 witnessed the thrilling contest.

In the first half the Tigers outplayed the pros and made four first downs against but one for the locals. In the first two periods the visitors kept the ball in Steubenville territory, but were unable to score. Nesser tried a placement kick from the 30-yard line, but it went wild.

The pros came back in the second half and played the Tigers to a standstill, making 11 first downs while Toronto made one. At the start of the half Steubenville received and in six first downs marched down the field from a shadow of Toronto's goal. Nielson carried it over on a line thrust for the first touchdown of the game. Stanley Keck, all-American from Princeton, added the extra point by a placement kick.

Keck Boots Field Goal.
The pros continued their smashing offensive during the balance of the third period and at the end of the final period advanced the ball to Toronto's 20-yard line. Keck was called back from his position on the line to try a placement kick. He made a perfect boot, giving the locals three more points.

During the balance of the period Steubenville opened up a spectacular attack which bewildered the visitors. Long passes from Simons to Hill and Nielson to Cimons carried the ball down the field to the visitors' 15-yard line, but a long pass was grounded and Toronto took the ball on downs.

The Stubbers had in their lineup three all-Americans, a galaxy of former college stars, while Toronto trotted out on the field a mixed team of sandlot stars, former college players and a number of star professionals. The game was played in less than an hour and a half. The second game of the series will be played at Kileus Field, Toronto, next Sunday afternoon.

The lineup:
Toronto—Q. Steubenville—10.

BETHANY BISONS BATTLE BOB CATS

BETHANY, W. Va., Nov. 17.—Bison Coach McCandless will begin this afternoon to drill his men and build a team to meet the Bob Cats Saturday at Clarksburg. The Methodists have a good record behind them, a record which credits them with some notable victories, compared to the Bisons, who have a very poor record this season. The Bisons will be put through a good week of preparation, however, and should be able to come through in good shape.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Benkert of Rutgers continued to lead the collegiate scorers in eastern football as a result of Saturday's games, but Tryon of Colgate made an appreciable gain. The former's total today was 34 points, Tryon having 29. Other leaders included McBride, Syracuse, 74; Hazel, Rutgers, 72; Koppisch, Columbia, 72; Bruder, West Virginia, 71; Berrell, Muhlenberg, 66; Krueze, Pennsylvania, 60, and Oberlander, Dartmouth, 60.

Viola Dana Comes To Ceramic Theatre In 'Merton of Movies'

Viola Dana, for eight years a star in her own right, makes her debut in Paramount pictures in "Merton of the Movies."

And through a curious co-incidence Glenn Hunter, the "Merton" of the photoplay, made "Merton of the Movies" his first appearance in the west.

Although each had known of the other for years and had mutual friends, they met for the first time when Hunter stepped from a transcontinental train at Los Angeles.

A week later they had exchanged their first kiss. It happened, of course, on one of the stages at the Famous Players-Lasky studio. James Cruze, who made "The Covered Wagon" and other successes and the director of "Merton," ordered them to do it. It was recorded on the film.

Cruze has selected an especially strong cast for this great story of youthful paths and laughter. Besides Hunter and Miss Dana, the players include De Witt Jennings, Elliott Roth, Luke Cosgrave, Gale Henry, Charles Selton, Charles Ogle, Ethel Wales, Frank Jonsson and Eleanor Lawson.

"Merton of the Movies" was originally a novel by Harry Leon Wilson and later became a stage play by Marc Connelly and George S. Kaufman. Hunter made his first great success in the stage play. Walter Woods wrote the film continuity. Karl Brown is supervising photography.

The story revolves around the experiences—tragic, funny and amorous—of a small-town youth who is movie-struck and goes to Hollywood to make

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Those who follow the business end of baseball quite closely are interested in Connie Mack's failure to offer most of his Athletics new contracts before allowing them to depart for the fire, hunting, horse, corner beany and beauty parlors. (Boy, page Mr. Bruggy).

In years gone by Connie has been at the ball park door after the final game of the season and given the boys a chance to sign on the dotted line for the coming season. This year there was nothing at the door but the block to hold it open.

The probabilities are that Mack intends to trade one or two of his huskies before spring rolls around and wants to consider seriously the salary matters of some of the men who have been rated as stars on paper but who have failed to make the grade for the Long Gent.

As the team finished last season it had several new faces. One or two pitchers who drew high salaries because of their good work in 1923 and 1924 were warming the bench. Connie is rather tired of pitchers who have the stuff but can't seem to distribute it from the mound.

And then, there's that $100,000 to be paid the Baltimore club for Lefty Groves. Which means that the purse strings will be held a bit tight for a little while at least.

It would be interesting to read Connie's mind just at this time.

Speaking of the European tour of the Giants and White Sox—or weren't we wonder just how much thought Owner McGraw of the former team is giving toward cleaning up the O'Connell-Dolan mess while abroad. This is a good time for welching carefully the actions, on and off the field, of his players last year and running to earth any semblance of a cue those actions might give toward eliminating a repetition of such a spectacle.

According to word from the east Manager Stanley Harris and Clark Griffith are having a little disagreement over the salary the suddenly famous Mr. Harris is to receive. The young and peppery pilot has asked that his pay check for 1925 be $18,000, or just double that of the one doled out to him last season. Griffith can't see this figure, it is said.

It is but natural for Harris to hope for a substantial increase in salary. And Griffith is big enough and fair enough to consider Harris' value to the club and meet him half way on reaching a new basis. But either Harris or Griffith is guilty of pulling a boner if either lets it be known that they were at loggerheads temporarily.

Many fans need less than this to start wild rumors of "spliffs" dissension, etc. And the fact that Harris is hitting for $18,000 will spur other members of the club to reconsider their value to the team and demand higher salaries. This immediately gives both Harris and Griffith something more to worry about when they should be centering their efforts on making the team sea worthy for another sail on the pennant sea.

As far as the $18,000 salary goes, the demand doesn't seem exorbitant in view of the fact that other men who have won flags are drawing from $20,000 to $30,000.

However, it is said by men in New York who should know that Miller Huggins has drawn but $15,000 a year as salary while leading the Yanks to three flags and into second place the fourth year.

Perhaps Huggins received a tidy sum as bonus in addition so that this figure probably does not represent all.

Knut Rockne certainly has developed the ideal backfield combination of the year.

Crowley and Don Miller—both 10-second men, are two of the fleetest backfield men in the game today. They can outrun the average tackler.

Layden, fullback, is not only the ideal third man to work with this pair, but has the powerful to needed to boot out any backfield trio. He can round the ball 50 to 60 yards consistently. He hits the line on tackle plays with the force of a battering ram. The present day open defense is made for him.

Give Rockne's line credit for its part in the success of the team to date, but the power of his team lies in his backfield. Notre Dame's goal line has been crossed but Rockne's defense has been able to more than equalize these scores.

his fortune in the pictures. Miss Dana has an especially strong part as the sophisticated little actress who "mothers" him and eventually forces him against his will to achieve ambition.

"Merton" comes to the Ceramic Theatre today for a three days' run.

TORONTO DROPS OPENING CLASH

Stubbers Outwit Tigers in First Series Game.

STUEBENVILLE, O., Nov. 17.—The Steubenville American Legion pros, playing their best game of the year, defeated the Toronto Tigers, 10 to 0, here Sunday afternoon in the first game of a series to decide the Ohio Valley championship. A crowd of 6,000 witnessed the thrilling contest.

In the first half the Tigers outplayed the pros and made four first downs against but one for the locals. In the first two periods the visitors kept the ball in Steubenville territory, but were unable to score. Nesser tried a placement kick from the 30-yard line, but it went wild.

WAR MAY HAVE ITS TERRORS, BUT NOT FOR OUR DEVIL DOGS

SHANGHAI, Nov.—War may have its terrors, but not for the American Marine detachment included in the Allied naval forces landed for the defense of the International Settlement of Shanghai. When the "Devil Dogs" landed they landed "soft," take it from them.

It so happened that when the allied defense plan for Shanghai was drawn up the defense of the Riverside Power station, which supplies all of the electricity for Shanghai and is, therefore, of the utmost strategic importance, was assigned to them. Officials of the Shanghai municipal electricity department, with the proper respect for America's famous soldiers of the sea, prepared a great welcome for them. Excellent barracks were fitted up in one section of the power plant, and the piece de resistance was a kitchen which included every known type of electrical household appliance. The "Devil Dogs" are now doing all of their cooking on electric stoves; they have electric toasters, electric egg cookers, electric coffee percolators and even electric boilers to warm the water for the hot toddies which are still quite legal in Shanghai.

If we'd determine the amount of humidity by hygrometer, instead of the amount of heat by the thermometer, we'd save on both coal and doctor bills.

ROGERS FUNERAL SERVICES SUNDAY

Funeral services for Robert, 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers, who died as result of burns, were held at the Green Valley church near Shippingport, Pa. Rev. W. C. Stokes, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, and Rev. Sellers, pastor of the Shippingport church, officiating. Burial was made in Bethlehem cemetery.

BIG DELEGATION AT TABERNACLE

Churches to this section were largely represented at the evangelistic services Sunday at the tabernacle where Rev. W. E. Biederwolf delivered three sermons. Delegations from local Sabbath schools were in attendance at the rally held in the morning. They marched to the meeting place in a body. Scholars of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church were headed by a band.

Employees of the various pottery plants in East End will form part of the contingent which will attend the services Thursday evening when "Labor Night" will be observed. A special sermon will be delivered by the evangelist.

Dr. P. H. Mettman Praises "DRECO"

"I find it Unusually Good for All Stomach Disorders, Liver Troubles And Chronic Constipation," He Declares.

When your stomach is upset and you feel out of sorts, or when your kidneys fail to function properly and cause a stiffness and aching in your joints and getting up during the night you don't want a medicine to deaden the pain for a time and then have it return worse than ever. You want something like Dreco which not only brings quick relief but also so strengthens your system that you are well for a long time afterwards.

Dr. Phil H. Mettman

"I have used Dreco myself and prescribed it for my patients," writes Dr. Phil H. Mettman, 1921 Champa street, Denver, Col., "and I find it is unusually good for all stomach disorders, liver troubles and chronic constipation. I have had it bring excellent results when used in the worst cases."

There's nothing in Dreco your own doctor could object to no matter how delicate your system or how bad you are suffering. For Dreco is natural—made only from the juices of herbs, roots, barks and leaves which have been carefully selected from all over the world for their remarkable tonic properties.

Try Dreco. It will help you. All good druggists sell it and Mathew's Cut Rate Medicine Store says it's the best system tonic they've ever sold.

Viennese Toss' Hatred White is Reveby Death

VIENNA — of a countess who hated long white, and who spent years of a fortune trying to make black, was told in the Vicours recently when relatives of the late Countess Anna Fery, who had been left out of her will, brought a suit against a Hungarian count, to whom she had left everything.

The relatives stated that every year she spent more and more trying to make everything black. In her home at Graz Castle she always wore black and kept all the windows perpetually shuttered. She slept by day and never went out until nightfall, taking care to return before the dawn.

They further stated that she spent vast sums on purchasing black swans and sombre-colored flowers. She hated all things white to such an extent that she even ordered that when snow fell in her domains it should be covered with cinders and coal dust.

BIG DELEGATION AT TABERNACLE

Churches in this section were largely represented at the evangelistic services Sunday at the tabernacle where Rev. W. E. Biederswolf delivered three sermons. Delegations from local Sabbath schools were in attendance at the rally held in the morning. They marched to the meeting place in a body. Scholars of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church were headed by a band. Employees of the various pottery plants in East End will form part of the contingent which will attend the services Thursday evening when "Labor Night" will be observed. A special sermon will be delivered by the evangelist.

Dr. P. H. Mettman Praises "DRECO"

"I Find It Unusually Good for All Stomach Disorders, Liver Troubles And Chronic Constipation," He Declares.

When your stomach is upset and you feel out of sorts, or when your kidneys fail to function properly and cause a stiffness and aching in your joints and getting up during the night you don't want a medicine to deaden the pain for a time and then have it return worse than ever. You want something like Dreco which not only brings quick relief but also so strengthens your system that you are well for a long time afterwards.

Dr. Phil H. Mettman

"I have used Dreco myself and prescribed it for my patients," writes Dr. Phil H. Mettman, 1921 Champa street, Denver, Col., "and I find it is unusual in its action on stomach disorders, liver troubles and chronic constipation. I have had it bring excellent results when used in the worst cases." There's nothing in Dreco your own doctor could object to no matter how delicate your system or how bad you are suffering. For Dreco is natural—made only from the juices of herbs, roots, barks and leaves which have been carefully selected from all over the world for their remarkable tonic properties. Try Dreco. It will help you. All good druggists sell it and Mathew's Cut Rate Medicine Store says its the best system tonic they've ever sold.

when relatives of the late Countess Auba Fery, who had been left out of her will, brought a suit against a Hungarian count, to whom she had left everything.

The relatives stated that every year she spent more and more trying to make everything black. In her home at Graz Castle she always wore black and kept all the windows perpetually shuttered. She slept by day and never went out until nightfall, taking care to return before the dawn.

They further stated that she spent vast sums on purchasing black swans and sombre-colored flowers. She hated all things white to such an extent that she even ordered that when snow fell in her domains it should be covered with cinders and coal dust.
